Pennsylvania Poultry Federation Holds Gala Event

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Wednesday night was the time for the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation to lay aside concerns for ailing egg prices. To forget about discussing costs, the economy, and poultry health concerns.

Instead, it was time to focus on conversing with friends, savoring good food, and indulging in rip-roaring laughter during the entertainment at the annual fund-raising banquet held at the Hershey Convention Center.

"This is our major fundraiser," Paul Hann, Federation chairman, told the crowd of about 1,400.

"The money collected from the ($125) tickets provides about 75 percent of the Federation's operating budget throughout the year."

In a brief address, Hann noted that the Federation will change as it approaches the year 2000.

"If you figure out what this organization should be in the future, tell us. We want your input," Hann said.

The non-profit Federation funds educational events, promotion, research, scholarships, disease control, and fosters governmental relations.

Federation officers Paul Hann, chairman; Bill Trace, vice chairman; Bill Scholotterbeck, secretary; and Jay Greider, treasurer, oversee the egg council, poultry meat council, poultry health committee, and the ticket sales team.

In keeping with tradition, the evening began with female guests selecting coordinating floral wrist corsages from the mass of rainbow-colored orchids tied with ribbon and netting.

Producers, processors, suppliers, and agribusiness representatives mingled throughout the social hour while sampling hors 'd oeuvres and later over a dinner of chicken casablanca with roasted red pepper sauce.

Entertainment included two headliners: New Odyssesy, a versatile musical group, and Jay Johnson, a ventriloquist.

John Hoffman, Federation executive director, presents Poultry Queen Michele Stauffer with an appreciation gift from the Federation.

Pa. Grangers To Discuss Issues With Lawmakers At Banquet

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Nearly 400 Grange members will descend upon the state Capitol on Monday, April 24, to discuss issues of importance with their state legislators during Grange Week activities. This annual event is one way the Pennsylvania State Grange attempts to bring government closer to the people. Grange Day in Pennsylvania is being celebrated on April 24 while Grange Week is honored by 325,000 National Grange members from April 23-29.

"The legislative reception and banquet is grass-roots at work as our members meet with their legislators to affirm Grange policy and express their concerns about agricultural and rural issues," said Brenda Shambaugh, Grange legislative director. "It also gives our members an opportunity to discuss one-on-one the problems facing them."

Some of the issues which the Grange is working on and will discuss with their legislators include:

Local Tax Reform—The Grange endorses legislation that requires less reliance on property tax and more emphasis on equal tax. The Grange also supports more local control on the tax formula because one tax base is different than another across the state.

Riverboat Gambling—Currently in the House Judiciary Committee, HB 939 allows for riverboat gambling in at least 25 riverboat casinos in the state. The Grange opposes riverboat gambling and has the assurance of the committee chairman that it will not be presented for consideration, but could come up on the House floor as an amendment. However, reports now indicate the bill may

National Ag Secretary Here For 1995 Farm Bill Forum

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — In an attempt to gather information from rural America about what is needed in the soon to be formulated 1995 farm bill, U.S. Sec. of Agriculture Dan Glickman and U.S. Rep. Tim Holden from District 6 held a regional forum Wednesday.

This forum was one of six to be held across the nation and will culminate in President Clinton's National Rural Conference at Iowa State University in Ames, Iowa, on April 25. The local forum was attended by rural leaders from at least six states. The forum was recorded, and parts of it will be shown to President Clinton at the National Rural Conference.

A number of Pennsylvania agricultural leaders and farmers were on the scheduled program, and later the floor microphones were opened up for comments by many of the several hundred persons who attended the meeting in the Berks County Ag Center.

Glickman said that Pennsylvania is one of the top states in the country for agriculture with its impact on jobs and the economy. And in the nation, 15 percent of the G & P and millions of jobs depend and relate to agriculture;

National Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman addresses the rural forum at the Berks County Ag Center, Wednesday. This was the third of six regional forums held to give opportunity for discussion of local concerns as the nation moves into the 21st century. Specifically, Glickman was looking for imput to help set the direction of the 1995 farm bill.

EASTERN REGION FROZEN EGGS, APRIL 18, 1995. FEDERAL-STATE

Prices were unchanged. The market tone was about steady. Demand remained light for trucklot volumes, and immediate fill-in orders were moderate. Supplies of frozen products were adequate. Offerings of shell eggs or liquid eggs diminished due to many breaking plants that worked reduced schedules over the holiday weekend, and shell egg clearances for the holidays that were excellent.

TIPS TO IMPROVE EGGSHELL QUALITY...

Dr Milton Scott
Nutritional Consultant

"Let's get specific"

Check specific gravity of eggs on a regular basis to monitor shell quality. The percent "floaters" and "eggs in transition" in a room temperature solution of 1 08 sp. gr is a good bench mark.

A 10 gal. bucket, a hydrometer, and an individual egg scale is all the equipment you need Used with breeder guidelines, this test can help you fine-tune the level of oyster shell needed at each stage in the laying cycle.

For details on sp. gr. tests and the use of oyster shells, contact The Fox Co., PO Box 708, Newfield, NJ 08344. FAX 609/697-1692, Phone 800/257-7022.

"I really feel it's helped production"
— David Bomberger

David Bomberger, a dairy farmer in Lebanon, PA, installed a hammer mill from Automatic Farm System last winter. Already he sees a big difference from the roller mill he had before.

"This mill does a much better job of cutting the corn -- now we can get it fine enough. We're feeding the same amount of corn, but the cows are utilizing it better. You see less grain in the manure. And I really feel it's helped production."

Give us a call to learn how an AFS hammer mill will work on your dairy operation, with low initial cost and low maintenance.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was fair to good and was sufficient to keep the bulk of sellers offerings in fairly good balance. Live supplies were moderate; weights remained mixed and irregular with 2.5 pound sizes in tightest supply. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 51 to 62 cents. Trade sentiment was steady. In the parts complex, wings were short of full inquiry. Other items remained irregularly balanced but were generally sufficient to meet the mostly light to fair and generally selective buying interest.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wednesday April 19, 1995

USDA-Market News Service
Daily National Grain Summary

Wheat prices finished mixed, with pressure stemming from profit taking and lack of new export sales while weather concerns offered some support. Corn prices turned higher on recent good export demand and planting delays due to wet conditions. Soybean prices extended Tuesday's losses as fund selling continued and meal slipped lower. Wheat mixed. Corn 1 to 3 cents higher. Sorghum 1 to 3 cents higher. Soybeans 1 to 3 cents lower. Wheat prices were slightly lower in reaction to late day fund sell- ing. Export sales have been very slow this week and recent beneficial rains added weakness to prices. However, some concerns over planting delays in spring wheat growing areas and cold weather forecast for parts of the winter wheat areas, limited price declines. Slight support was noted in corn pits due to cool, wet, weather con- ditions in Midwest regions. Although corn planting is not into full swing, recent rains have kept farmers out of fields. Soybean prices continued lower on profit taking and record large crops reported in S. America. Additional weakness in soybean meal demand was also a negative factor for beans.

42 Cow Tie Stall Barn - Leola, PA

Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!
At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as:
- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

APRIL 24-30, 1995

WALPURGIS NIGHT, APRIL 30.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, ROBERT B!

The founder of The Old Farmer's Almanac, Robert Bailey Thomas, was born in Grafton, Massachusetts on April 24, 1766 — 229 years ago. The first of 12 editors and 23 publishers to concern themselves with The Old Farmer's Almanac, now in its 203rd anniversary issue, Robert B. put out 54 editions before he died in 1846. The Old was added to the title from 1832 to 1835, and then permanently from 1848, to reduce confusion with competing almanacs. Now collector's items, the old issues still crop up in attics, backhouses, and barns around New England. The original issue cost sixpence (about nine cents).

Everything has a beginning.

— French proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Freshly-cut cucumber rinds will discourage crickets and cockroaches from taking up housekeeping.

DANIEL WEBSTER'S CHOWDER

- 4 tablespoons chopped onion, fried in salt pork
- 1 quart boiled potatoes, mashed
- 1-1/2 pounds sea biscuit
- 1 teaspoon thyme
- 1 teaspoon summer savory
- 1/2 bottle mushroom catsup
- 1 bottle claret or port wine
- 1/2 nutmeg, grated
- some cloves, mace, and allspice
- 6 pounds sea bass or cod, sliced
- 25 large oysters
- black pepper, to taste
- lemon slices for garnish

Put all ingredients except lemons in a pot, cover with an inch of water, and boil for one hour, stirring occasionally. (Reputedly, boatmen prepare it better than others.) Garnish each serving with a slice of lemon.

Serves a crowd!

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When leaves show their undersides, Be sure that rain betides.

If the oak before the ash comes out, There has been or will be drought.

When the goose bone exposed to air turns blue, it indicates rain.

OPINION

Crisis Will Be Too Late

Months before the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor in 1941, two British scientists came to the United States looking for help, carrying with them a small amount of a relatively unknown drug, penicillin. The two carried away more than they had expected: not only a way to mass produce the drug to fight war infections, but also a superior strain that U.S. scientists found on a moldy cantaloupe.

Shortly after the war ended, a researcher with the Florida Citrus Commission had an idea to restore the flavor and aroma of orange juice once the fruit had undergone vacuum evaporation. That idea gave birth to the frozen concentrated orange juice industry.

Decades later came a cornstarch and synthetic chemical compound, ingredients that produced a super absorbent material—dubbed the Super Slurper—that could hold hundreds of times its weight in water. It became the liner for disposable diapers.

Then there's hybrid corn, leaner pork, xanthan gum, soft vinyl plastics, soy ink, kenaf paper and thousands of other consumer, scientific and medical products that have come out of publicly funded agricultural research.

"We impact consumers everyday in their lives." said Loretta Owens, legislative chief of staff for the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) as quoted in the March issue of "The Cargill Bulletin." "There aren't too many things that we didn't have a hand in."

Over the years, those contributions and consistently high rates of return for public dollars have generated little political or taxpayer opposition to agricultural research.

Yet neither has research attracted much public support, researchers say. Federal and state funding has only kept pace with the higher cost of doing research. Now, when the United States needs to pursue research and development aggresively to take advantage of increased global opportunities for agriculture, they say, a budget-cutting Congress is looking for savings in the 1995 farm bill, the omnibus legislation that will govern U.S. agricultural policies and budgets for the next five years.

"Right now there's a lot of complacency," said Keith Fuglie, an economist with USDA's Economic Research Service (ERS) who's directing a study on agricultural research. "There really isn't any food crisis.

"But what people have to keep in mind when they talk about agricultural research is that the money you put up now is going to be affecting our food prices 10, 20 years from now. Research takes a long time to do...It also takes a long time to build up an effective research system, but a very short time to destroy it."

For sure, the vast agricultural research network—including land-grant universities, experiment stations, extension offices, USDA laboratories and international centers—is far from crumbling. But, experts say, it is showing signs of stress as it responds to growing demands and changing expectations. The entire system, they contend, is underfunded and underfocused.

Dominated by federal and state governments since the turn of the century, agriculture research has in recent years gained an increasingly large contribution from private industry. While public dollars for research barely kept up with inflation, private spending is growing at a faster rate and has surpassed public funding levels. But the additional source of research money also has muddied the issues of control, focus and the fundamental mission of public research.

Social changes have also prompted shifts in research subjects. Once tied mostly to crop yields, research has greatly expanded in scope to embrace nutrition, environmental protection, food safety and a host of other areas that appeal to urban dwellers as well.

"There's a lot of question in terms of what the public sector should be doing, who should be doing it and how it should be done," Fuglie said.

"It used to be that government scientists talked to farmers and gave farmers what they wanted," he said. "Now they have to listen to what the farmers are interested in, what environmentalists are interested in, what consumers are interested in. There's a lot more pressure on the system."

In addition, many people, even at land-grant universities, are starting to say, "Let private industry do the ag research. We'll do other things." But this kind of attitude takes away from the more unbiased opinions that can be generated through public institutions and agencies.

Let's continue to provide both public and private funding for ag research now so we can continue to develop the technology we need for practical application beyond the year 2000. To wait for a food shortage crisis will be much too late.

To Vaccinate For Rabies

We continue to see many cases of rabies each year. It is important that all pets, horses, and animals that come in contact with wild animals be vaccinated for rabies.

According to the Pennsylvania Health Department, unvaccinated pets, especially dogs, are the largest threat. Rabies vaccination are required for dogs and are key in keeping rabies from people.

The vaccination is required every three years. All reported dog bites are reported to the state dog warden. Of the 15 dog bites reported in Lancaster County, only two of the dogs were vaccinated for rabies.

The fine for not vaccinating is up to $300. The vaccinations are far less expensive than the $1,200 for human shots for rabies and associated costs of quarantine and disposing of animals.

To protect yourself and neighbors, vaccinate all pets and animals that come in contact with people. The only animals that do not contract rabies are birds, snakes, lizards, fish, turtles, and insects.

To Have Tetanus Shot

With warm weather finally here, we are able to participate in more outdoor activities. With this increase in activity, we are being exposed more to tetanus.

Tetanus-causing bacteria are present everywhere around us — soil, bushes, trees, rocks, etc. Once introduced through a cut or wound, the bacteria cause a life-threatening situation by locking the jaws.

This disease may be prevented by a vaccination. If you do not remember when you had your last tetanus shot, schedule one this week with your doctor. Review your family vaccination schedule with your doctor and make sure all the proper vaccinations are received by all family members.

If cost is a factor, many hospitals offer free or very low-cost vaccinations. Talk with your doctor and make sure everyone in your family is properly vaccinated for tetanus and other diseases.

To Market Manure

Strong worldwide demand for fertilizer over the past two years has contributed to a substantial rise in fertilizer prices.

Nitrogen prices for the fall of 1994 were 25 percent higher than a year ago. Then an explosion at a nitrogen plant near Sioux City, Iowa in December added pressure on nitrogen prices.

The plant produced about two percent of the U.S. nitrogen supplies. In a good supply year, loss of that much production would have minimal impact. However, in an already tight market, the impact was significant.

This has contributed to even higher prices for spring fertilizer. These higher prices combined with good weather are creating an excellent business opportunity for farmers with manure to market.

A recent survey of major poultry producers found Lancaster County has been sold out of poultry manure for several weeks. According to Leon Ressler, extension environmental agriculture agent, following several good marketing principles will help you successfully market your manure.

First, promote your product. Advertise! It is also important to understand your competition and be honest about your product's advantages and disadvantages.

Manure's primary advantage is low cost relative to fertilizer as a source of crop nutrients. Also, some of the nitrogen in manure will be available slowly over time, supplies micronutrients, adds organic matter to the soil, and is an organic fertilizer.

Offering manure test information to potential buyers is very important. It is important to start thinking of manure as a commodity with value and that is worth managing.

"PUFF UP" OR "BUILD UP"
April 23, 1995

"PUFF UP" OR "BUILD UP"

Background Scripture:
I Corinthians 8
Devotional Reading:
Romans 15:1-13

In his book Christian Behavior, C.S. Lewis says that the core of Christian immorality is Pride. "Unchastity, anger, greed, drunkenness, and all that, are mere fleabites in comparison: it was through Pride that the devil became the devil: Pride leads to every other vice: it is the complete anti-god state of mind."

That's a pretty powerful statement, but I would agree. In my mind it is far easier to refrain from lying, stealing, killing and committing adultery than it is to avoid the destructive corrosion of pride. Most Christians I know avoid the sins I've listed above, but that doesn't mean they avoid pride. In fact, if they are fairly faultless in keeping the Ten Commandments, they are quite possibly sinfully proud of it. As Eugene A. Nida says, "Pride is idolatrous self-worship...Pride deifies self, even in the guise of humility."

Many Christians become proud of what they "know"—doctrines, creeds, dogmas, and so forth. They are proud of their knowledge and disdainful of those who do not share it. Even if their knowledge leads them to the doctrinal position of admitting that they are sinners, they may be proud of knowing it. That is why Paul, in writing to the Corinthians says, "If any one imagines that he knows something, he does not yet know as he ought to know" (8:2). I think J.B. Phillips renders his passage even more clearly: "For if a man thinks he 'knows' he may still be quite ignorant of what he ought to know."

KNOWLEDGE PUFFS UP

What is it that we "ought to know?" The answer: how little we do know. Knowledge should make us humble, not proud. Knowledge brings us closer to the presence of the living God and that should produce humility. But, all too often, as Paul puts it, "Knowledge puffs up" (8:1b). We have true knowledge only when it does not make us conceited.

But love has a different effect upon us. "Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up." We may use our knowledge to put others down, but love can only lift them up. Paul says, "...if one loves God, one is known by Him" (8:3). Knowing is always inferior to being "known by Him." To be "known by Him" is to be loved by Him.

LOVE BUILDS UP

The situation to which Paul is addressing himself in I Corinthians 8 is hard for us to relate to. Much of the meat that was used for offerings in pagan temples wound up being sold in the market. Some Christians were leery of eating such meat because they felt it was tainted by paganism. Other Christians said that this pagan meat didn't bother them because to them it was simply food, not pagan sacrifices. Paul is counselling the Corinthians not to buy and eat such meat if their example is likely to cause someone else to be troubled by their conscience.

I have heard this passage applied to just about every contemporary situation and I do not believe it ought to be rigidly applied beyond the problem to which Paul is addressing himself. To avoid doing anything of which my neighbor disapproves is not a solution.

Much more to the point is Paul's admonition that can be applied more widely than the eating of meats sacrificed to idols: "Only take care lest this liberty of yours somehow become a stumbling block to the weak" (8:9).

It is a choice for all of us: to be puffed up or to build up.

Governor Ridge Proclaims Grange Week

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—More than 300,000 Grange members nationwide will celebrate Grange Week April 23-29. In recognition of the event, Governor Tom Ridge has officially proclaimed that week Pennsylvania State Grange Week.

"Their (Grange members) values of hard work and service to the community have helped to reinforce our agricultural traditions and have bettered the quality of life in rural communities for many years," Ridge said. "Grange efforts are focused on family and opportunities to be involved in agriculture and community service as it provides leadership and support in the technical and scientific advances of tomorrow. I urge all of our citizens to acknowledge and applaud the achievements made by the Pennsylvania State Grange."

Gov. Tom Ridge spoke to about 500 Grangers at the state convention in Carlisle last November just two weeks before he won the election.

The Pennsylvania State Grange will offically celebrate Grange Week on Monday, April 24 with educational workshops on such topics as health care, environmental issues, agricultural concerns and combatting animal rights activists. A legislative reception and banquet follows the workshops, which kick off Grange Week activities at 1 p.m. Nearly 400 Pennsylvania Grangers are expected to attend the festivities at the Sheraton Inn-East in Harrisburg. Non-grangers are cordially invited and can register by calling 1-800-552-3865 by April 19.

PA Grangers To Discuss Issues With Lawmakers

sink in the state House. The Grange, in an effort to further oppose riverboat gambling, joined a coalition that is fighting to defeat the bill.

Truck Plates—This bill passed the House and is currently in the Senate Transportation Committee. Many farmers want to drive their farm vehicles after dark and for more miles. The Grange fixed that problem in the last session, but some farmers wanted more options. To correct the situation, the Grange supports legislation that creates another class of registration to accommodate all farm vehicle owners.

Underground Storage Tanks—HB 825, which contains several agricultural provisions, passed the House recently and is now in the Senate. Operators of tanks on farms would pay the same indemnification fee (2 cents per gallon used plus $100) as owners of gasoline tanks. Farmers currently receive bills on capacity of tanks and not usage. The bill aslo would add a farm owner to the storage tank advisory committee and a Grange member to the underground storage tank advisory committee. Furthermore, a storage tank loan fund would be available to the owner of the farm who wishes to close or remove a storage tank under this legislation.

State Budget—The Grange is pleased that the governor's budget seeks increases in agricultural funding, but seeks more funding for ag research and Penn State Cooperative Extension, whose funding remained the same as last year. The Grange also opposes cuts in the FFA, the Animal Health Commission and mushroom promotion.

Property Rights—The Grange seeks legislation that would provide compensation for landowners when there is a property loss. The bill also would require government agencies to assess the impact of any new regulation on the rights of private property owners.

Industrial Sites—Senate Bill 1 encourages cleaning up and reusing abandoned and polluted industrial sites. The Grange supports this bill and believes every effort should be used to utilize existing sites and not build new sites on agricultural and forest lands.

Prior to the evening legislative banquet, workshops on various topics will be held. Two cabinet members in the Ridge administration, Charles Brosius, Secretary of Agriculture, and James Seif, Secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources, will be on hand to discuss their plans for their respective departments and answer questions from audience members.

Non-Grange members are invited to attend these workshops and Grange Day festivities. Call 1-800-552-3865 by April 19 for more details or to register.

The PA State Grange, representing 33,000 members in 66 counties across the state, is an agricultural, rural and community service organization working to improve the quality of life for Pennsylvanians through legislation and community service and is a grass-roots organization that gives members a voice in local, state and federal government.

Pennsylvania State Grange Works To Cultivate Youth

Pennsylvania State Grange

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—It has been said that our youth are our most precious resource. The manner in which we raise our children will have an impact on generations to come. Deb Campbell, PA State Grange Junior Director, said it's a privilege to work with young people in the Junior Grange.

"I've always said that Grange kids are different," Campbell said. "I'm not like some other adults who look for the faults in our children. If you can keep kids busy, they'll stay out of trouble and will be willing to do what you ask."

Junior Grange, entering its 108th year, is open to children ages 5-14 as part of the Pennsylvania State Grange. The Grange is a rural, agricultural and family organization which offers members social activitics, a legislative voice, community service and insurance and cooperative buying programs. The PA State Grange is celebrating Grange Week 1995, which is being honored the week of April 23-29, with its Legislative Day in Harrisburg on April 24.

One of the organizations greatest interests is the development of its youth and juniors.

"Junior Grange teaches leadership to young people," Campbell said. "It also teaches them not only to get along with children their own age, but how to interact with everyone."

Contests and programs are offered through the Junior Grange as a way to promote this leadership and develop the children into active citizens. Every year there is a statewide talent competition, creative writing contests, craft contests, various field trips and Junior Camp.

At Junior Camp, a Junior Prince and Princess are chosen to represent the Junior Grange for the coming year. They are selected based on their knowledge of the Grange, answers to impromptu questions and an essay. This interest in the children doesn't end once they leave Junior Grange.

At Junior Grange Camp for fun, all jump into the water together. Camp is held for junior grange members between the ages of 10 and 14 while any youth age 5 to 14 may become a member of the Junior Grange.

At age 14, they can no longer be Junior Grangers, but are eligible to become regular members of their local Granges and part of the Youth Department.

"Where will the Grange—and society in general—be in the future if it doesn't nurture its youth?" Martha Ebersole, state youth/young marrieds directors, said.

The Youth Department picks up where the Junior Grange leaves off by offering various activities and programs that would appeal to the different age groups between 14 and 35. There is an annual Youth Camp, statewide volleyball tournament, public speaking contest and other honors such as the Youth Ambassadors. At Youth Camp, the highlight of the Youth Department's year, one female and one male Youth Ambassador between the ages of 16 and 22 are chosen.

"These Ambassadors will hold their title for a year," Ebersole said. "During their reign, they help spread the word of the Grange by representing the organization at various functions."

The Grange also does its part to develop its young married couples, according to Ebersole. Each spring, a Young Marrieds Weekend is sponsored and couples have the opportunity to get away from home to relax and socialize with other young couples. There are also a number of educational workshops geared toward the couples on subjects such as remodeling your home, family finances and health care.

No matter what age, the Grange tries to develop activities and programs to interest its members.

Grange cookbooks are a staple in many Pennsylvania kitchens as well as kitchens from Hawaii to Canada. Marcia Shore, left, and Mary Hiller, show two of the Grange cookbooks.

DER Invites Public To Sewage Sludge Roundtable Discussion

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The public is invited to attend a roundtable discussion of the land application of sewage sludge and septage, 6:30 p.m., May 2, at the Harrisburg headquarters of the state Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

According to a news release from DER, the focus of the roundtable discussion is come up with suggestions for improving the process of the land application of sewage sludge and septage.

The meeting's two-hour format is to consist of one hour of presentations from five speakers, followed by an hour of open discussion.

The five speakers are to represent five different perspectives on the application of sewage sludge.

A representative of a local citizen's group, a farmer, septage hauler, treatment plant operator, and a representative from DER are to field those perspectives.

The intention of the forum is to "identify the essential and sound ingredients of the land application program, the places where improvements should be considered, and ideas for making those improvements," according to the news release.

The roundtable group meets four times per year at the DER headquarters building, located at 400 Market Street, in Harrisburg.

Action by DER, on results and possible recommendations coming from the meeting, is to happen during the July meeting of the roundtable group.

For more information, call DER at (717) 787-4686.

Awards will also be given to winning dairy judges from the spring contest, Dairy Science Club Young Dairy Leader and Dedicatee, and the Department of Dairy and Animal Science Distinguished Dairy Science Alumni.

Young Dairy Leader

Penn State's 1995 Outstanding Young Dairy Leader is Benjamin E. Dum, Jr., a 1991 graduate majoring in Dairy and Animal Science. While at Penn State, Ben was very active in the Dairy Science Club. Some of his activities in the club include 1990 Dairy Exposition show manager, 1990 Dairy Judging Team, PA Holstein Association quiz bowl contest, and selection committee for the Nittany Lion Fall Classic. Outside of the Dairy Science Club, Ben was the secretary of the Alpha Zeta fraternity, and vice-president and initiation chairperson of the Coaly Society. Because of these accomplishments, he was named Outstanding Senior in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

Ben, who resides in Perry County, married Heather Briner in October of 1993. He is the manager of Ben-Lou Holsteins, a 100 registered Holstein herd. Ben-Lou Holstein's rolling herd average on 53 cows is 21,600 pounds, with 818 fat pounds and 690 protein pounds. With a BAA of 105 percent, the farm has received the Genetic Herd Award the past two years.

Ben Dum is also active in the farming community. He is the director and president of the Perry County Holstein Club and was delegate to the 1993 National Holstein Association Convention. He is also the local affairs chairperson for the Perry County Farm Bureau. Each year, Ben returns to Happy Valley to serve as a judge at the annual spring dairy judging contest.

Dairy Judging Service Award

Receiving the Dairy Cattle Judging Service Award are Duane and Donna Duncan. Duane is an extension agent in Cumberland County. For over twenty years Duane and Donna have organized the Pennsylvania 4-H and FFA Judging Forum at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show. Over eight thousand young people have participated in this educational activity since its inception. In addition, the Duncans have been instrumental in the success of the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show and other youth activities.

Penn State Dairy Exposition Dedicatee

The club has named Creedin Corman its 1995 Expo Dedicatee. Creedin, more commonly known as "Creedie," was born and raised on a registered Holstein farm near Mechanicsburg, PA. He graduated from Mechanicsburg High School in 1948 and received the American Farmer degree in 1951. Also in 1951, he married Ellen Westbrook, and they started their own farm, Justa-Beauty Holsteins, in March 1952. Creedie has bred 46 Excellent cows under the Justa-Beauty prefix. He has shown at every state Holstein show since 1954 and has received many All PA awards with his cattle.

Creedie and his wife, Ellen, have two children, Steve and Sharon. Their son Steve and his wife Debbie have two children, Becky and Aaron, who are both 4-H members. Their daughter Sharon works as a secretary at the Cumberland County Extension Office. Her husband Greg is a third year Vet student at the University of PA. They have two sons, Greg and Mark.

In his spare time, Creedie volunteers with his local fire company and is a EMS First Responder. He is also the president of the Cumberland County Extension Board and has been a 4-H leader for over 20 years. Creedie is also an active member of the Holstein Association, serving as President, Secretary, and State Director of the Cumberland Valley Association. Check Tobacco Beds

John O. Yocum
Penn State Research Station
Landisville

If you did not do a good job of watering, there may be poor plant stands in your tobacco beds. We have had a dry spring and windy conditions which could have caused germinating tobacco seeds to dry and die.

Tobacco seed germinates near the soil surface, so frequent watering must be done until the plant root grows deeper in the soil. On low humidity, windy days, the plant beds may need watering three times a day to keep the soil surface damp.

Beds should be checked now to determine if there are enough plants. The normal number of plants per square foot is 40 to 50. Plant stands less than this are acceptable, but too few plants produce transplants that have no stem and are thus difficult to transplant.

If plant stands are too thin, overseed at a reduced seeding rate. To save time, Amos Beiler, our only certified tobacco seed grower, will have germinated seed of the popular Pennsylvania and Maryland varieties for sale at the Paradise Tobacco Auction, (717) 687-0990.

Remember, if you reseed, do a good job of watering.

WARNING!

DON'T THROW AWAY UP TO 45% OF YOUR HAY.

Losses occur when crops are stored--regardless of the storage method. Those losses are real--colorless, odorless and invisible--you can't see them, but they're there.

The air trapped within stored feed begins the fermentation process--and fermentation continues until all the air is consumed. The less air within the stored feed, the less loss.

Because bunker silos are not easily packed, losses in bunker silos range from 27% to 45%. If the feed is valued at $30 per ton, every 1000 tons stored in a bunker would suffer losses from $8,100 to $13,500. Tower silo losses range from 3% to 8%, or $900 to $2400 for every 1000 tons.

Those losses occur for every 1000 tons--every time feed is stored, year after year. Before investing in any storage method, consider the total costs--including fermentation loss.

Compare the various methods of feed storage. Contact the Crop Storage Institute for your free copy of "Methods of Crop Storage" and "Know the Facts."

His 23rd Senatorial District includes Bradford, Tioga, Lycoming, Sullivan, and Union Counties.

Sen. Madigan graduated from Penn State in 1951 with a B.S. degree in dairy production. He is a member of the Penn State Coaly Society and the Delta Theta Sigma fraternity. Sen. Madigan was a dairyman for 13 years prior to 1965 and currently operates a 260-acre crop and certified tree farm near Towanda.

From 1977 through 1984, Madigan served as a member of the House of Representatives for four terms, representing the 110th District, which includes all of Bradford County.

From 1988 through 1993, he served as chairman of the Senate Labor and Industry Committee, leading the fight to bring stability to Pennsylvania's Unemployment Compensation System and saving the commonwealth more than $400 million in interest payments to the federal government.

For this and other efforts, Sen. Madigan was named the 1989 Government Leader of the Year by the Pennsylvania Chamber of Business and Industry, that organization's highest public sector honor. Sen. Madigan is the only state legislator ever to be so honored.

In 1993, Madigan received the newly created Leadership Award from the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association for his efforts in bringing about major reforms in the Pennsylvania Workers' Compensation system. This award was created to recognize exceptional effort and is not given annually.

Sen. Madigan is a member of the Joint Legislative Air and Water Pollution Control and Conservation Committee, the Pennsylvania Public School Employee Retirement Board, and the Governor's Advisory Council for the Deaf and Hearing-Impaired. He also serves as chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, vice chairman of the Game and Fisheries Committee, and is a member of several other committees, including Appropriations, Ethics and Official Conduct, Labor and Industry, Local Government, and Veterans Affairs and Emergency Preparedness.

In 1991, he was appointed to the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport. Madigan also is director of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association.

Among Madigan's many community activities are the Rotary Club, various Masonic Orders, Bradford Lodge IOOF, Bradford-Sullivan County Farmers' Association, Mayflower Grange #1311, Bradford County Holstein Club, and Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

Madigan and his wife, the former Peggy Goble, are the parents of four children.

Pa. Ayrshire Association Names Brubaker To Hall Of Fame

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — A queen was elected, a new member of the Ayrshire Hall of Fame announced, and an Ayrshire Spring Calf and Heifer Sale highlighted the first day of the 1995 Pennsylvania Ayrshire Convention.

Kicking off the eventful weekend was the "Princess Presentation," with Kathy McKenzie of Clinton, being named princess. Katie Young of West Grove and Elizabeth Seaman, Thompson, were runners-up.

Junior princesses were Erica Seaman, Thompson, Rebecca Nolan of Pottstown, and Jennifer Maulfair of Jonestown.

Rodger Hoyt, sire analyst for Select Sires, was the guest speaker following the banquet, held at Clara's in Bedford. Pointing out the shortfalls of Ayrshire breeders over the past five years. Hoyt noted a need for a greater protein increase.

"The key to better genetics," Hoyt said, is to sample a large number of bulls in organized programs."

"Sire selection is 90 percent of genetic improvement because we don't know a lot about cows, but we do know a tremendous amount about bulls."

He recommended all Ayrshire farmers to adopt a better breeding program; have DHI testing; breed 30 percent of cows to young sires in an organized program; set reasonable goals; and select cows for lifetime profits.

Milton Brubaker of Lititz was announced as the 1995 "Hall of Fame," inductee. Now a resident of the Brethren Village, Brubaker, 84, has belonged to the Ayrshire organization for 61 years. He began farming in 1934 and is still active in the organization helping to publish the Ayrshire Digest.

A sale immediately followed the banquet at the Bedford Fairgrounds. Wayne Weaver was auctioneer while Kristen M. Russell did the pedigrees.

A bid of $1,400 topped the bidding for the evening for Wentworth-Farm Trident Karess, a summer yearling owned by Rob and Bonnie Wentworth of Quarryville.

Close second was Conebella Corben Rachel, a winter calf, sold for $1,360. She was owned by Don Gable of Conebella Farm, Elverson.

"The steal of the sale," according to the auctioneer, was Heverston Kojak's Sandra, a spring yearling of Plum Bottom Farm, Belleville. The cow brought only $325 with a set of horns seeming to be the culprit of the low bidding.

Other bids were a winter yearling owned by Jacob S. Zook, Honey Brook for $540; a summer yearling owned by Charles H. Pent, $500; a fall yearling owned by Mike S. Zook, $720.

A spring calf, owned by the Sweinharts of Rushing Spring Farm, went for $800; Pure-Ayr Request's Mary Joe, a winter calf, sold for $585. She was owned by Pure-Ayr Farm of West Grove.

Masonic Homes sold a winter calf, Masonic Homes Jem Stone Ann, for $285; Rushing Spring Farm's Babe Carla, a spring calf, sold for $760.

Toll Gate Ayrshires of West Alexander sold Papillion Joee, a winter calf, for $735; Pure-Ayr's Requests Bobbie brought $700.

Alvin Zook, Honey Brook, sold a winter calf, for $510. B.J. Waltimeyer's Yaples Rita of Jarrettsville, Md., brought $520.

Melody-Lane Joyce, a summer yearling, went for $325; EJ'S Ayr-Willow Farm of Thompson, sold a spring calf for $385.

Calves and heifers sell at the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association annual convention sale.

From the left, Don Gable, president of the Pa. Ayrshire Association, presents Milton Brubaker, an inductee into the association's Hall of Fame, with a plaque.

State Ayrshire royalty are Katie Young, Kathy McKenzie, Elizabeth Seaman, Erica Seaman, sitting, and Rebecca Nolan. Not shown is Jennifer Maulfair.

Allied Milk Producers Hold 45th Annual Meeting

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co.
Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.) — Approximately 250 members and guests of Allied Milk Producers Cooperative Inc. attended the co-op's 45th annual meeting, held recently at the Masonic Temple in Johnstown.

Allied Milk Producers Cooperative is a dairy promotion cooperative with members in a nine-county region including Somerset, Bedford, Cambria, Indiana, Blair, Westmoreland, Jefferson, Armstrong, and Clearfield.

Its board of directors include Joel Rose, president, Fred Shankle, vice president, Lowell Friedline, scretary, Janice Lidwell, treasurer, Robert Beatty, Dave Myers, and Marvin Thomas.

In his president's report, Rose said that radio advertising continues to be the cooperative's best promotion tool, and also its most expensive, at $72,000 per year.

He said that a series of 30-second commercials are used by 14 radio stations in the area, with changes in the commercials every six to seven months.

The cooperative's second-most emphasized advertising compaign uses billboards. "We're very proud of our billboard campaign," Rose said.

He said that a new billboard is to be soon displayed along Rt. 422, near Indiana, and seven new billboards are being made to replace previous rotating ones.

According to the cooperative's annual report, Allied has been a leader in a Altoona-area campaign that promotes milk and a drug-free environment.

Further, Allied supports the dairy princess program operations in its membership area, as well as promotion committees and programs such as farm families serving as host for school tours, or other tours.

In other activities, for several years the cooperative has been a leading sponsor of the Pennsylvania Special Olympic Winter Games; and also has sponsored 10 area school teachers who participated in the week-long Farm Bureau's Ag in the Classroom program, held at Penn State University.

One of the teachers who attended the program told about here experience.

Delaware Valley College Students Prepare For A-Day

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.)—For students at Delaware Valley College in Doylestown, the rewards of hard work are finally beginning to show, as preparation continues for the 47th Annual A-Day country fairy and open house April 29 and 30 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the College grounds.

"It (the amount of work) is more than I ever imagined," said Jim Koontz, chairman of this year's effort. "But I know that I'll appreciate it later, when I see everyone here."

More than 20,000 people attended last year's A-Day festivities, which raised approximately $87,000 for student activities at the College.

This year's A-Day, one of the largest country fairs in southeastern Pennsylvania, will include numerous flower and craft shows, as well as science exhibits, horse shows, pony rides, food entertainment and hayrides through the Delaware Valley College campus. Tours of college facilities, orchards, and the Henry Schmeider Arboretum will also be available.

A-Day will be especially significant for College alumni as well, as they welcome Dr. William L. George to the College Presidency, which he accepted this February after a term of service to the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

This year's A-Day festivities will be held, rain or shine, on the Delaware Valley College campus located on Route 202 in Doylestown, Bucks County. Admission is free on both days, parking is $5. For additional information or directions, call (215) 345-1500.

"I left State College with a new understanding of agriculture," she said. "It was a first-rate workshop."

She said she used some of the ideas in her classroom, implementing several hydroponic projects for her third-grade students. Their assignments were to record facts and to give related reports.

From this, the use of math, science, and communications were employeed, demonstrating the need and uses of these areas of knowledge.

She said the final goal of the project was to have the class raise enough vegetables so that they all could eat a salad.

Special guests of the cooperative included Natalie Welch, state and county dairy princess, as well as dairy princesses Haley Sankey, Clearfield County, Stephanie Goodheart, Armstrong County, and Denise Heidorn, Bedford County.

M.H. Eby, Inc. Commemorates Expansion

BLUE BALL(Lancaster Co.)—On April 28-29, M.H. Eby, Inc. will mark completion of its newly expanded manufacturing plant and corporate offices in Blue Ball. A 30,000-square-foot addition has more than doubled facilities for manufacturing, service, and administrative offices. The site is located along R. 23, just east of Rt. 322.

To commemorate the expansion, Eby is holding an Open House on Saturday, April 29, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The public is cordially invited. Plant tours will also be conducted and refreshments will be served.

The company, which is a leader in the design and manufacture of aluminum agritransport equipment, will display several models of its livestock trailers.

In conjunction with the Open House, a Customer and Vendor Appreciation Day will also be conducted on Friday, April 28 from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Attendance for the Appreciation Day is by invitation only. Interested Eby customers may call (717) 354-4971 for more information.

The enlarged plant and offices will increase Eby's production of truck bodies and trailers for livestock, grain, and farm commodities to nearly 1,000 units annually. The addition includes facilities for improved material handling and storage, better production flow, and manufacture of new products, such as all-aluminum horse trailers.

THE ONLY ENCAPSULATED PREMIX THAT GETS THROUGH RESIDUE

In no-till corn, you only get one shot at season-long weed control. That's why it pays to load up with Bullet® herbicide. Bullet is encapsulated to shoot through heavy crop residue. So while others volatilize off the surface or get tied up in residue, Bullet gets into the soil to stop germinating weeds.

ENCAPSULATED FOR SUPERIOR CROP SAFETY

Instead of releasing its power in a single shot, Bullet meters out its active ingredient throughout the entire growing season. In doing so, it delivers unsurpassed crop safety—especially when your young corn plants are most vulnerable to herbicide stress.

ENCAPSULATED FOR SEASON-LONG GRASS AND BROADLEAF CONTROL

Unlike other atrazine premixes, Bullet is micro-encapsulated for timed-release, season-long control. The kind of control you need to stop tough grasses and broadleaves like foxtails, fall panicum, cocklebur, lambsquarters, pigweed and velvetleaf.

This year, ask your dealer for the no-till premix that combines stopping power with staying power. Bullet herbicide from Monsanto.

Lehigh Seminar Provides Grain Marketing Alternatives

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

TREXLERTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — If you're looking for a better price for your grains, don't wait until harvest time to sell your commodity. Chances are, you're going to get close to the bottom of the price range of the last few years, said a marketing specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

Instead, consider using futures contracts (a method of securing the best price despite fluctuations in final cash price for the commodity) or options (insurance against low prices) to get maximum dollars for your grain.

Whatever is done, it's important to gather all the information about the marketing alternatives before making a decision, according to Kevin McNew, marketing specialist for the Maryland Cooperative Extension.

McNew spoke to about 30 grain producers at the Grain Marketing Seminar Tuesday evening at the Pied Piper Restaurant near Trexlertown.

If you don't do any marketing before harvest — sell your grain at harvest and don't make use of forward contracts and don't use futures or options — then in the last five years, "you priced your grain in the worst half of the price range, most of the time," said McNew.

For wheat producers, waiting to sell at harvest has meant obtaining the lowest half of the price range in all of the last five years. For corn growers, the lowest half has been obtained in three of the last five years.

That's why, said McNew, it's important "to study marketing and why it's important to use marketing" to get the best price.

In a nutshell, one of the most common ways to insure a good price is to examine locking in the price under a forward contract. That contract is made in the planting season for the commodity at harvest time. The price, amount, and delivery are set.

Producers can shoot for a more realistic goal — getting in the middle of the price range or a little higher — by making use of a different approach, which involves more risk, through futures contracts. That is an agreement made by the seller to the buyer to lock in a price today in the futures market what the seller will do tomorrow in the cash market, said McNew. Through hedging, or selling the futures price today for the grain at harvest, growers can provide a cushion for themselves for their product if the price rises or falls. The best contract is written when the "basis," the cash price minus the futures price, is, on average, relatively high.

Many factors go into determining an "effective price" using futures. But the high basis price is the key to determining a good contract.

Another approach would be to use a form of insurance, in which a premium is paid to insure that, in case the cash price of a grain falls at harvest time, the grower will still get a better price, depending on the size of the premium paid. This is called a "put option." The rate the grower pays will determine when exactly the contract is written and what the futures indicate.

Whatever the case, growers should consider all their choices before making a decision to use either futures or options in marketing grain, according to McNew. And sellers should do their homework and calculate what the benefits can be.

At the seminar, worksheets provided information on how to determine futures and options contracts.

"What it tells you is, you should do this math before you go sign a forward contract," said the marketing specialist. "Do the math and figure out, is the price you're getting from your forward dealer, the elevator, comparable to this price?"

At the meeting, McNew recommended that growers who want to market grain put only 50 percent of the year's expected production with a forward contract. The other 50 percent of the production can be placed in options.

The meeting was sponsored by Penn State and the Lehigh Valley Grain Marketing Club. Penn State provides more information regarding how to use marketing alternatives for grain. For more information, consult the free publication, "Marketing Resources For Grain and Forage Producers," available from the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension, Lehigh County Ag Center, 4184 Dorney Park Rd., Allentown, PA 18104-5798, (610) 391-9840.

EAYFA Holds Training Session

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.)—Ephrata Area Young Farmers monthly meeting was held on April 11 at the Earl G. Martin Farm on Royer Road.

Rob Kauffman, research manager for Brubaker Consulting, presented a training session on pesticide spraying and corn planter calibration. This seminar was educational to aid in the proper handling and application of agriculture enhancement products.

The planter adjustments to use the most profitable amount of seeds and at proper depths are essential to making the most profitable result. In addition, the fertilizer and any other additives need the same careful handling. The implements were used in the educational process.

A discussion on scholarship and Cloister buying group was followed by a report on the ag in the classroom. It was very interesting to hear of the responses.

The next monthly will be on May 9, to include a gardening and horticultural presentation.

Ag Secretary Here

"Farm products and the big chunk of what they represent will show the highest exports ever this year," Glickman said. "We will have nearly $50 billion of exports from the ag sector, which is an amazing fact. Only two parts of the American economy consistently show surpluses since the Second World War. They are airplanes and agriculture.

"Our purpose here today is to get input for rural policy for the 1995 farm bill. We are here to examine Northeast agriculture: dairy, mushrooms, food processing, the great diversity of farms, and rural America in a setting that is not isolated from urban America."

Glickman said the majority of dollars spent in the Department of Agriculture are not spent on farm programs but in nutrition and feeding programs. Ten billion dollars goes to farm programs, but $25 billion goes into food stamps and other food programs.

"This series of forums will give input on what the dairy policy should look like, how our conservation programs can work better with producers, how we can stop government from micromanaging and nit-picking on farmers, and how we can best accommodate the consolidation of the Department of Agriculture in the streamlining that is going on now," Glickman said.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius welcomed Sec. Glickman and thanked him for choosing Pennsylvania as one of the forum sites and for his promise to be an advocate for agriculture.

"It will be a pleasure for us in Pennsylvania to help you accomplish your goals," Brosius said. "It is equally important to increase the profitability of farmers so they can operate businesses to supply products to please and satisfy our citizens while continuing to strengthen the economy of rural Pennsylvania."

Brosius also welcomed Representative Holden and said that in his position on the house ag committee, he is able to directly influence legislation that affects all of us.

"We know that 1995 is important to agriculture," Brosius said. "The new farm bill is being drafted and recommendations are being made for the 1996 budget. We urge both of you to be watchful that agriculture does not need to yield to substantial and unreasonable cuts. We are happy to work with those of you in Washington to strengthen the economy of agriculture throughout the nation."

Rep. Holden said it was a proud day for Pennsylvania agriculture, the 6th Congressional District agriculture, and Berks County agriculture. "We have an unprecedented opportunity today (to participate in this forum) as the U.S Congress, Sec. Glickman, and President Clinton prepare to write the 1995 farm bill," Holden said. "This piece of legislation will set the farm policy for the next five years for the United States of America."

Hundreds Compete In Spring Judging Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — More than 300 4-H and FFA youth from across the commonwealth converged on Penn State's University Park Campus recently to compete in the annual Spring Livestock Judging Contest that marks the beginning of the summer show and livestock judging season.

If attendance was any indication, then fair skies probably had as much influence on event's success as any other single factor.

Contestants gathered at Penn State's Ag Arena were required to place six classes, including crossbred heifers, Simmental heifers, Dorset yearling ewes, Dorset fall ewe lambs, Duroc barrows, and Yorkshire barrows. More than 25 teams and 69 individuals competed in the junior advanced division, which included placing the six classes of livestock and delivering three sets of oral reasons to official judges.

The largest group of contestants were the junior beginners, where 237 individuals representing 76 teams made the 1995 contest the largest in recent years. Results of the contest are listed here.

This year's contest was under the direction of Daryl Bomgardner (senior, dairy and animal science, Annville) and Keith Bryan, instructor and coach of the Penn State Livestock Judging Team.

Members of the 1994 Penn State Livestock Judging Team (all current or former students in Dairy and Animal Science) served as officials for the contest. Swine officials were Gary Schick (senior, Oil City) and Nikki Willwert (senior, Red Lion); sheep officials were Andy McIntire (1994, White Post, Va.) and Jason Ahola (senior, Woodstock, Conn.); and beef officials were Ryan Mattocks (senior, Meadville) and Tom Gibney (1994, Colora, Md.).

Also, coaches of 4-H teams served as officials for the collegiate professional division that included students competing for a place on the 1995 Penn State Livestock Judging Team that will compete in one more contest during spring semester and another four in the fall.

Although the primary purpose of this annual contest is to provide an opportunity for young people to enhance their ability to evaluate livestock, it also serves as a forum to draw young people from across the commonwealth to Penn State's University Park Campus to view the quality livestock that are produced at the land-grant institution and to encourage them to consider Penn State in their future educational plans.

The spring event also kicks off a busy month of activities for members of the Penn State Block and Bridle Club. After the contest, students prepared bulls for the Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center's Performance-Tested Bull Sale. In addition, the club conducted their annual Little International Livestock Exposition on Saturday, April 8, also at the Ag Arena.

Training Pa.DHIA Technicians

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pa. DHIA recently completed another field training seminar on Feb. 17, and congratulations go out to Kevin Rickert of Beaver County, and Renee Miller, of Westmoreland County, who completed their studies.

For technicians, education is a continuous process.

The field training seminar recently completed by Rickert and Miller is just one of several steps in the training procedures for technicians at Pa.DHIA.

Before attending the five-day field training seminar, all new technicians receive initial training.

The initial training involves working directly with an appointed trainer from Pa.DHIA. All aspects of the testing procedures are covered. Also included is getting familiar with the laptop computer.

The overview of responsibilities, sample handling and equipment procedures are covered in-depth.

Pa.DHIA recognizes the importance of on-the-farm training. This involves the trainer being present with the newly hired technician and helping him learn how to perform in a parlor herd, pipeline herd, as well as a bucket herd.

At this point in the training process, practical situations such as managing a circuit and recognizing a rule infraction are covered. Communication between both the dairymen and the Pa.DHIA staff is important for a successful cicuit, therefore much time is spent learning how to handle different situations that may arise in the field.

As the trainee completes two weeks of employment, he is put through another phase of training. This phase involves the trainer traveling along with the technician and evaluating his performance at six different herds.

After making the evaluation, the trainer determines whether the technician requires more fundemental training.

The field training seminar follows shortly after the two-week evaluation, with time allowed in between to provide the trainee with the opportunity to be exposed to different situations, and develop questions.

This training process gives each new technician the exposure they need to gain more experience. This also allows for communication situations between Pa.DHIA staff and the dairymen on the circuit.

The five-day field training seminar covers in-depth the Quick Barn Sheet on the laptop computer. A special emphasis is put on the correct usage of the computer, as well as having each technician become familiar with each option on the option screens.

The correct procedure for starting a new herd, and the correct procedures in handling split herds is also taught in this seminar.

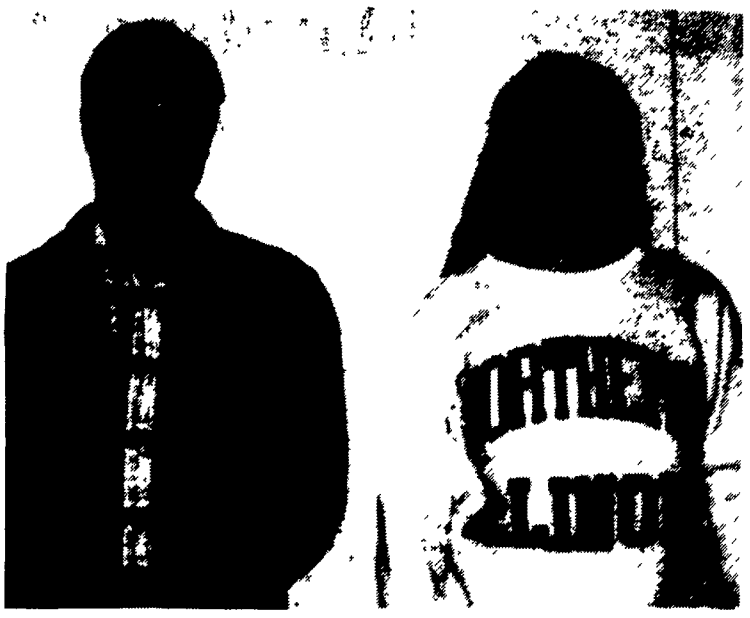
Professionalism and also circuit management is taught along with many different examples on how to handle different situations that come up in the barn.

An in-depth study of feed and forage is taught along with the different formulas to calculate milk price.

A special emphasis is placed on the laptop computer at the field training seminar with the technician required to constantly use it.

Our main objective is to make each technician familiar and comfortable with the laptop computer. During the seminar, a tour of the sample and meter lab is included, to familiarize each technician with the general operation of each department.

Learning how predicted transmitting abilities (PTAs) are read, and interpreting the member's reports are a high goal for the week. Each report that a dairymen can receive is broken down and covered in-depth.



From the left, Kevin Rickert of Beaver County, and Renee Miller, of Westmoreland County, are two relatively new Pa.DHIA technicians who completed their field training seminar portion of training.

Handling in-state and out-of-state transfer cows and calculating the records is covered in the training so each technician understands the transfer process.

Time is set aside for discussion of the how to fill out the Hiefer Management Report, and how to fill out all reports.

At the end of the five-day seminar, a certification exam is given to each technician. This exam allows for each technician to decide if they may need more assitance in the future.

After a technician has been employed for six months, the regional Pa.DHIA manager does an evaluation. The regional manager conducts the evaluation with a visit to a farm while the technician is performing testing. It is determined then if the technician is capable of working with limited supervision.

Furthermore, a yearly evaluation of each technician is conducted to determine the training needs of a technician at the point.

Part of the yearly evaluation is requesting suggestions from the dairymen within the technician's circuit. This is done by giving each member dairy farmer the opportunity to fill out a questionnaire about his/her technician.

This information, as well as input from the regional manager, can be helpful in determining each technician's particular training needs, in the constant goal of providing dependable, high quality service to members.

For more information about technician training, or any aspect of Pa.DHIA, feel free to call 1-800-DHI-TEST.

National DHIA Annual Meeting Focuses On Profiles

COLUMBUS, Ohio—The 72 delegates attending the 30th annual meeting of National DHIA, held March 27-28 in Burlington, Vt., heard from a number of progressive dairy producers and industry professionals, warning them to move forward aggressively in the development of new products and services.

Don Berg, vice president of the Milk Procurement/Membership Division of Land O'Lakes, encouraged the delegates to, "view the future aggressively," and summarized the coming changes in milk production, processing, and marketing strategies.

Don Rogers, vice president at Farm Credit, addressed specific areas of opportunity for DHIA, based on a stronger emphasis on the economic efficiency of the farm.

The Herd and Cow Profiles received the overwhelming approval of the National DHIA delegates. The Profiles are designed to provide an alternative to the enforcement-based Official DHI Rules program, and represent a major opportunity to strengthen the flow of production data throughout the dairy industry. Paul Knox, a New Hampshire producer well-known in genetic circles, referred to these Profiles as "a stroke of genius."

The delegate action clears the way for additional research, implementation, and field education necessary to support the Profiles program. Implementation is expected in 12-18 months.

An amendment to bring the program back to the delegates in 1996 failed, but some supporters of the amendment said this was not a critical issue. Background materials have circulated through a number of channels, with additional information supplied as the program moves forward.

Dale Van Erden, a New York producer, presented a list of reasons why, "the future for the top producers will be very exciting."

The remainder of the program was driven by DHIA's interest in making these "top producer" strategies available to DHIA members nationwide. Eubert Correll, North Carolina, said the DHIA program needs to refine its pricing and service levels to better address all herd sizes and farming styles.

President Tom Sammon encouraged his fellow leaders to consider all available options in developing new services for their

Ralph Heffner, owner-operator of a 500-acre family farm near Pine Grove, and board chairman of Agway, said that with the many new members of Congress, one of the biggest challenges we face is to educate the members of Congress about the production capabilities of the nation's farmers and the issues we face domestically and internationally.

Ralph Heffner, owner-operator of a 500-acre family farm near Pine Grove, and board chairman of Agway, said that with the many new members of Congress, one of the biggest challenges we face is to educate the members of Congress about the production capabilities of the nation's farmers and the issues we face domestically and internationally.

"Many issues face us," Heffner said. "But one issue may determine the future of farming and agribusiness in Pennsylvania and this in many ways can be determined by our ability to adequately address farm related water quality issues.

"Pennnsylvania farmers, especially those in the Chesapeake Bay area, are among the nation's leaders in addressing non-point source polution. There is a cost involved here that for the most part cannot be made up on the milk check and higher commodity prices. It is generally recognized that the 1995 farm bill and the reauthorization of the clean water act will deal with many environmental issues facing farmers.

"As we move forward on the farm bill and the clean water legislation, we urge you to give consideration to several issues that are essential to establish a framework for agriculture in Pennsylvania and throughout the nation to compete in today's global economy."

Heffner listed the following points for consideration:

1. We need to insure that ag is not unfairly singled out for disproportionate spending cuts in the federal budgets.

2. We should consider changing the conservation program to provide additional cost-sharing assistance to address agriculture's non-point source pollution.

3. We need to consolidate federal water quality programs where possible and send one clear policy signal to the states.

4. Any program aimed at agricultural non-point source pollution should be a voluntary incentive program based on an approach that will allow farmers to develop cost effective solutions.

John Haberen, president, Rodale Institute, said we are facing a soil health crisus. "One of our most important natural resources has been neglected or abused for much too long," Haberen said. "The growing world population and the increasing demands for food and fiber magnify the strain on soil at a time when we can least afford it. Soil erosion is destroying 29 million acres each year. That amounts to tons of topsoil lost each year.

"A point we may be missing is the effects of the loss of soil and soil fertility in human and animal health. A critical relationship exists between healthy soil and healthy food, and healthy people. It becomes increasingly clear that what we eat and where it is grown has a lot to do with how healthy we are, how long we live, and how we feel."

Haberen's recommendations included:

1. The farm bill should expand research in the area of soil quality in relationship to human health.

2. Subsidy programs, if needed, should be based on the relationship between soil quality and crop quality.

3. Agencies such as the institute of health need to be included as primary players in the U.S. agricultural system.

4. A soil quality and a soil health index should be developed.

5. An extensive educational program should be launched to call attention to threatened soils.

Larry Kehl, a Berks County dairy farmer, said that the number of dairy farms in Berks has declined at an alarming rate with the number one problem, the price of milk.

"Since 1980 the price of milk has been about $12.50 per hundred," Kehl said. "According to the forecasts, this price will remain through the year 2,000. Unfortunatly, farmers will not be able to make a living if taxes, insurance costs, repairs, and other costs increase each year while they receive the same income of 20 years ago. Farming is the only business where you sell wholesale and buy retail.

"The family farm in Berks County is in great danger of vanishing. Hog and chicken farmers now contract with bigger companies. We do not want to see the family dairy farm go in that direction."

With tongue in cheek, Kehl suggested that the present federal administration could consider rolling back the budget of the milk marketing administration to the 1980 level to make them live on the same kind of budget as farmers must do.

Edward Hartman, a dairy and beef farmer from the Reading area, said excessive regulations were of great concern.

Excessive regulations for clean water, wetlands, minor-use pesticides, farm labor, capitol gains, taxation, endangered species protection and encroachments on private property rights all are important to farmers in Berks County.

"Regulations contribute to the threatened survival of present farms, and new farmers are almost nonexistent," Hartman said. "This condition presents a challenging condition for the future of production agriculture. There is much talk of downsizing, including government help for agriculture. Farmers are willing to see cuts in agriculture as long as these cuts are shared by everyone else in the country. We don't wish to be singled out as scapegoats for the nation's budget problems.

"We are in a global economy, and I don't expect to see the pressures on farmers to be reduced anytime soon. Farmers were concerned about water, land, and conservation long before it became a national issue. Farmers would do more for conservation than they are now doing if their expenses did not always consume all of their income.

"Capital gains and estate taxes make it very difficult to pass a farm on to the next generation. Both are burdensome because inflation and appreciation is based on development pressures and have no relation to the farm's productivity.

"There is much talk about endangered species such as snakes, rats, owls and more. If we can't get relief on some of these farm problems, another species will be added to the list. It will be the family farmer," Hartman said.

Bill Wehry, along with his father, own and operate a 250 sow farrow to finish hog operation near Klingerstown. Wehry centered his comments on the idea that excessive regulations are hampering the success of current farm programs. In many instances farmers need to balance federal, state, and local regulations in their farming enterprises. This often becomes a challenge.

"Many conservation practices have been adapted on a wide scale basis," Wehry said. "A wise use of our natural resources can be achieved through voluntary compliance. We are at a crossroads, and the turn we take will allow us to build on the conservation benefits derived from the 1985 and 1990 farm bills, or we will lose all we have achieved.

"The variety of programs administered at the ASCS office give rise to an array of paperwork that causes the most intellectual to scratch his head. Seventy-five percent of the farmers in my community are assessing if it is worth the necessity of jumping through all the hoops. For this reason I question if we are regulating away the effectiveness of our farm programs. We need to look at what we have achieved and maintain these results.

"Programs such as whole-farm base, which provides farmers with greater flexability in management decisions, will allow the ag community to maximize profits and insure a stable food supply. The ag producer must be a specialist in many areas. I devote 70 hours per week in my operation, and my major concern still is how my bills will be paid. Food production is an important issue, and farmers have met this need with the cheapest, safest, most abundant food supply in the world. I believe this adminstration needs to consider the economic needs of the farm community while developing the 1995 farm bill. If we give farmers the management tools to be successful, we will successfully meet the food needs of the nation," Whery said.

Lancaster DHIA Reports Status

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.)—Lancaster DHIA's (LDHIA) board met recently at the lab in Manheim. Committees met in the morning with the full board convening after a light lunch.

The number one goal of LDHIA has been to bring new herds into the DHIA system. As of this meeting sixty-nine (69) new herds have been enrolled. The board commends the technicians for their success and we welcome these new members.

Jere High, lab manager, reported the lab is running well. The lab is achieving accuracy along with a quick turnaround time of lab results. The advice given by DHIA labs at Mid-East, Vermont, and Tennessee is proving out nicely. The installation of lab equipment and computer programming by Ohio DHI is of very high quality. LDHIA members have benefitted from the cooperative attitude exhibited by these DHIA cooperatives.

For the members information, the lab is showing a monthly profit. Also, Ohio DHI has programmed the computers to test and report SNF. This testing option is now available to members, by request, at a cost of two (2) cents per cow.

Phil Dukas, CEO of NDHIA, visited with members of LDHIA's executive committee in March to review our application for service affiliate status. Everything appears in order as of our April meeting. All requirements of NDHIA will be achieved.

A by-laws committee, of five board members, is working to revise our by-laws to suit our new status. Items being addressed include number of board members, term limits, and areas (districts) from which board members are elected. Most of the by-laws will remain exactly the same.

National DHIA's new herd/cow profile program was discussed. Delegates to the National DHIA convention in March voted to proceed as quickly as possible with this new program. LDHIA members are hearing of new testing programs. These new testing programs are dependent on the successful testing of the herd/cow profile program which will change the Official DHI System rules. Another 12 to 18 months are needed by NDHIA to complete testing. If you have any questions please contact your board member.

Pleasant Valley Farm Finds Success In Diversification And Marketing

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

BROOKEVILLE, Md. — For 31 year-old Randy Stabler, the two sides to the equation needed to farm 3,500 acres of expensive farmland within 25 miles of Washington, DC, are diversification and marketing. Stabler farms in partnership with Robert, his dad; Drew, his uncle, and Fred Lechlider, his brother-in-law. The operation goes by the name Pleasant Valley Farm.

For diversification, Stabler grows corn, soybeans, wheat, hay and the offspring from 150-cow beef herd. A complement of tractors, combines, trucks, and planting and haying equipment take care of producing the crops. A lot of the maintenance work on the equipment is done in on-the-farm shops. In a mini-feedlot the calves are fattened for a local meat market.

"We don't put all of our eggs in one basket," Stabler said. "In my wife Judi and two little girls Kelsey, 3, and Shelby, 6 mos., I do. But not in the farming operation. The variety of farm enterprises keeps us going. When one is down, the others carry the wheel. I'm not here to just be in farming. I treat it like a business, and I want my business to be successful." This seventh-generation farmer in Montgomery County said he has tremendous respect for his dad and his uncle. "They have given me every opportunity in the world. They have made it easier for me, and I would like this feeling to be part of the story."

And while Stabler said his grandfather was also successful, times have changed, and the opportunities in today's farming climate are not the same.

"I can't go out here and plant 1,800 to 2,000 acres of corn and expect to sell it in October or November to my local broker/elevator and live the lifestyle I want for my family. This is a very large picture. My grandfather was darn successful. He had a marketing plan, but he never wrote it down. I don't see the same opportunities for me. With the need for a return on my investment and my cost of growing a commodity, I can't sell it for just what it is costing me to grow it. Therefore, I need to figure where I am going to make up the difference."

Most farmers follow the markets, even subscribe to the newsletters of professional analysts. But the Stablers have taken this a step further. They subscribe to the recommendations of three or four professional commodities market analysts and authorize their broker to place hedges according to the percentages of their crop they have designated to be traded under the recommendations of each professional. If one professional has a bad day, maybe another will have a good day.

Since the commodities market is highly leveraged, Stabler never puts the total expected crop on the market before the crop is harvested. In addition, as the season progresses, if because of drought or other problems the expectation for the harvest is diminished, he gives notice to change his hedges accordingly. And he is prepared for margin calls if they come.

"I do this for ease of mind, Stabler said. "When I'm out on the corn planter or sprayer, it's not a priority for me to market grain. "

"The track record says the professional analysts have done so much better at marketing corn or soybeans than I have. So why not follow their advice? How many times have you seen farmers not be successful because they planted a crop with no marketing plan and turned around and sold the crop at the lowest point of the market? We are not speculators. We are using our own commodities on true hedges and it is a marketing tool I use, and it is working," Stabler said.

Randy Stabler, in cab, is the seventh-generation farmer in Montgomery County. With him from left, is Uncle Drew, Robert, his dad, and Fred Lechlider, his brother-in-law. They farm 3,500 acres in Montgomery County.

As for farming in the shadow of the Washington monument, Stabler says he favors a balance between development and preservation of farmland. There is still a lot of agriculture in Montgomery County, but development is expanding also. He calls this expansion progress and said he would not want someone to come in and with the stroke of a pen to stop the development without compensation for "ripping away my equity from me in land values on some of the land we own."

Much of the ground the Stablers farm has been in families for generations and the relationship between these families and the Stablers is good and long lasting. "We try to be good stewards of both the land and to the owners of the land," Stabler said.

In the future, Stabler believes agriculture is changing for the better. Farmers are doing a better job of telling their story. "I believe we have gotten on top of the fact that we are not the bad guys that society was trying to make us out to be," Stabler said. "Science and data are coming around to support us on this theory.

"Government's role will be less, which may not be all that bad in the long-term but could be stiffling in the short-term. The good farmers will manage this, and the bad managers won't.

"And consumers will have to pay for more of what they are beating on us for. If we are doing something wrong, according to society, and we must change, the consumer will bear the cost rather than agriculture taking the full brunt for the cost of this change."

Bogle Distinguished Alumnus

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science has named T. Roy Bogle, one of the nation's top cooperative extension educators and administrators, as its 1995 Distinguished Animal Science Alumnus.

Bogle was born in DuBois. He embarked on an extenion career in 1959 as a student in a Penn State Cooperative Extension summer training program in Venango County.

Upon graduation from Penn State in 1960 with a bachelor's in animal husbandry, Bogle accepted a position as county extension agent in Ohio, first in Jefferson County, then in Conshocton County, where he developed the highest ever 4-H enrollment and achieved the project completion record for both counties. Before long, he was appointed chairman over the total county program. During that time, he was involved in a sizable swine production project and earned a master's degree in agricultural education at Ohio State University.

In the 1970s, Bogle accepted a position at Purdue University to study the economics of swine production and, at the same time, he earned a second master's degree, this one in agricultural economics. He then enrolled in a doctoral program in agricultural economics at the University of Missouri, where he also taught courses in farm management.

His next position was as area extension economist with the cooperative extension service in southwest Kansas. Within two years, he was promoted to extension economist at the main campus of Kansas State University, where he coordinated the programs in five areas of the state. Bogle computerized the field application of all farm management programs, developed a statewide education program for farm estate planning, and coordinated the Kansas School of Agricultural Banking.

In 1980, Bogle accepted a position as assistant director, agriculture and natural resources, University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service. During a four-year stint there, he was responsible for coordinating educational programs with more than 300 cooperative extension professionals, as well as heading several prestigious committees and organizing conferences. He also participated in two eight-week assignments, first in 1981 as part of a small team of consultants to China on agriculture statistics and farm planning and then in 1983 as part of a staff of 24 charged with designing a teaching, research, and outreach program for a new agricultural university in Pakistan.

In 1984, Bogle took over statewide program leadership of Oklahoma's Cooperative Extension Service. He helped rewrite a grant proposal to the W.K. Kellogg Foundation for $860,000 that helped to put satellite dishes in 77 cooperative extension offices. He also helped initiate the use of computers in all extension offices and served as chairman of the Southern Rural Development Center, the Southern Region Extension Directors, and the Southern Region Low-Impact Sustainable Agriculture Council.

T. Roy Bogle

As part of a year-long USDA project with Oklahoma State in 1992, Bogle served as senior extension advisor to Armenia's Ministry of Agriculture, helping to establish an extension service there. The group worked under considerable hardships during a time of great political upheaval in Armenia, going for days and sometimes weeks without fuel for cooking, heating, or even pumping water.

Shortly after returning from Armenia in 1993, Bogle retired from the Oklahoma State University Cooperative Extension Service. When not traveling the country in their 30-foot recreational vehicle, he and wife Carol live in Hot Springs Village, Ark. They have two grown children, Alan and Laurie.

Delegates Approve Merger

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The nation's third largest dairy cooperative was formed recently with the merger of Milk Marketing Inc., based in Strongsville, Ohio, and Eastern Milk Producers, Syracuse, N.Y.

The merger became effective April 1, by a vote of delegates, with each cooperative holding its own separate voting meetings.

The consolidated cooperative has retained the name of Milk Marketing Inc., while also incorporating the "cow's head" logo of Eastern.

The combined membership now sits at 9,000 family farms, including 1,600 affiliates, in 11 states from Indiana to Vermont.

The merged dairy cooperative is the third largest nationally, in terms of total milk handled, and fourth nationally, in terms of member-milk marketed.

The consolidated business will market and process almost 7 billion pounds of milk per year, valued at about $1 billion.

Headquarters will be in Strongsville, while the Eastern headquarters is to be a regional MMI office.

In a joint statement from Herman Brubaker, chairman of MMI, and Lewis Gardner, president of Eastern, the merger represents "an historic event for dairy farmers and their cooperative.

On March 28, in Corning, N.Y., 93 Eastern delegates voted unanimously to approve the merger. Those delegates represented 3,808 farms, or 99 percent of membership.

The next day, at MMI's meeting in Columbus, Ohio, 182 delegates also voted for the merger. Coincidentally, the number of MMI delegates voting also represented 99 percent membership.

Members now own several manufacturing and marketing facilities.

Included are Farmers Dairy Foods Inc., with four manufacturing plants in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio; a mozzarella cheese plant in Waverly, N.Y., operated by Leprino Foods; Eastern Laboratory Services, a food and environmental testing subsidiary; and Eastern Best Products, a food and farm product distribution subsidiary.

Meeting Focuses On Profiles

member producers.

CEO Phil Dukas reported total DHIA enrollment for the year was up 25,000 cows, to 4.7 million. Using a report card format, he gave the DHIA System high marks in many areas, but stressed the need to strengthen the data network and new product development.

Treasurer Buddy Nichols stated finances were stable, with a surplus of $59,000.

Dr. Dean Plowman, chief administrator of the USDA-Agricultural Research Service stressed the need for continued research support in the dairy industry.

Wim Rossing of MAG-DLO, Glen Lucas of British Columbia DHIS, George Tucker of Bou-Matic and Michael Tomaszewski of Texas DHIA rounded out the technology symposium program, offering various insights into the future of the dairy industry. Consolidations and joint ventures were the major topics off the convention floor.

Minnesota and Cornell DRPCs have announced their plans to close by the end of the year. Some DHIA mergers have occurred, such as the Heart of America, with others in discussion.

Tulare DHIA became the first new DHIA Affiliate since the removal of state barriers. And while a number of DHIA labs have consolidated, a similar number of new labs have entered the System.

National DHIA serves as a liaison for the DHIA System with other dairy industry organizations. The DHIA System provides dairy management information systems for the dairy industry which aid dairy producers' profitability.

The DHIA System is comprised of 32 Affiliate DHIAs, 45 central milk analysis labs and nine dairy processing centers. The DHIA System includes over 2,000 employees nationwide and has a membership of over 50,000 dairy producers.

Harry and Annette Buck with Stephanie, 16; Jarod, 14, and Kathryn, 10, work together on the farm and off the farm. The family milks about 60 grade Holsteins and tills 150 acres that has been in Harry's family since the 1920s.

Family Togetherness Prevails At Buck Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Some families set priorities. Some drift along and deal with things as they happen. The Buck family in Lebanon have their own unwritten list of priorities but remain flexible enough to adjust to the ebb and flow of living.

The close-knit family embrace many projects together — from farm work to community and church activities.

Harry and Annette and their three children — Stephanie, 16; Jarod, 14, and Kathryn, 10, — farm 150 acres and milk about 60 cows.

"I've lived here all my life," Harry said of the farm that his family purchased in the 1920s.

The bank barn was built in 1822 and Harry surmises the house was probably built at the same time. Since then several buildings have been added including a dairy barn built in 1971. Two Harvestores were added six years ago and a silo for high moisture corn about 18 months ago.

"We try to keep debt down by saving enough money before making purchases," Harry said. "That often means putting things off before we make changes."

His wife said that waiting gives her plenty of time to research ideas. She waited many years for a new kitchen, but considers it worth the wait.

The former kitchen was located in a small enclosed porch. About three years ago, the Bucks added onto the house and the spacious kitchen now has plenty of windows, a skylight, and light oak cupboards with lots of counter space.

"I went to a lot of open houses to get ideas," Annette said.

She enjoys going to auctions and picking up several pieces such as a large sideboard that fits in the combined dining and sitting area off the kitchen. A wooden box with dried flowers, collectibles, and handicrafts by several family members add interest to the room. Stenciled cows on the white walls, a cow motif tablecloth and afghan, and numerous other cow artifacts are found throughout the home.

Annette said, "I thought we had enough cows outside without having them in the kitchen, but several people gave us some (cow memorabilia) and now we are into cows (inside)."

As members of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, the Bucks always shoot for the 20-cent bonus paid for quality milk and are pleased that they usually achieve it.

So much of producing quality milk hinges on the somatic cell count. Harry finds it fascinating to try to figure out why the somatic count sometimes goes up for no apparent reason and then drops even though they don't do anything differently.

His interest in the count fluctuations began in 1969, while working on the farm for his dad. Harry had read an article on research that showed somatic cell counts dropping after teat dipping milking and dry treating cows.

As dairy promotion coordinator for Lebanon County, Annette often works with her daughter in preparing dishes that include real dairy products.

Stephanie prepares her calf Jewel for 4-H competition shows.

As a Lebanon County Dairy Maid, Stephanie often assists with dairy promotional events. Her favorite promotions are telling kids about the goodness of milk. To reinforce the message, she often hands out "Real" stickers like the one she places on her sister Kathryn.

"I wanted to try it because it sounded promising. Dad was a bit skeptical at first. But he soon saw a big difference with less mastitis and higher milk production. We've been continuing the practice ever since," Harry said of the family's priority to keep somatic cell count down.

"Last month we had it down in the 80 range, and we're trying to figure out what we did differently," Harry said.

"The only thing we can figure out is that we've been keeping the cows on their feet longer during milking time by feeding them more before milking."

The difference in feeding practice requires Annette to man the milkers longer. But the city-girl turned loyal dairy farmer loves working with the cows.

She said, "I wouldn't want to go back to the city."

Before the two married, Harry wanted Annette to know what she was getting into. So she learned to milk cows before she said, "I do."

Fortunately for both, Annette liked the cows so much that within two months of marriage, she quit her hospital job to become a full-time farmer.

From the beginning of married life, Harry and Annette lived on the family farm. The house had been used as a two-family residence off and on throughout the years. Within a few years of Harry's and Annette's marriage, Harry's parents built a house on the farm land. Since then, the Bucks have switched the two-family farmhouse dwelling into a one family. Every couple of years, they remodel a room.

Although there were six siblings in Harry's family, Harry said that he was fortunate to take over the family farm.

He said, "I was the one with the most interest in farming."

Alfalfa, corn, wheat, and soybeans are crop farmed. Seasonal grazing is used on a large pasture that has a creek running through it. Otherwise the cows are fed a total mixed ration with corn silage and high moisture corn.

"We only started using high moisture corn about one and a half years ago. We saw an immediate increase in milk production," Harry said of the cows average of 21,400 pounds.

All grade cows are used except for the children's 4-H dairy projects.

Annette and Harry do all the field work and the morning milking. A hired man helps with the evening milking.

Both Stephanie and Jarod help with the milking and calf feeding. Even 10-year-old Kathryn helps by giving the calves a bottle.

While the girls like the cows, their brother prefers field work.

Stephanie has been showing cows for four years at local shows. A 10th grader at Palmyra High School, she cannot participate in FFA or vocational agriculture because the school does not offer it. She is thinking about switching to another nearby school that does offer the course, but that school's commitment to agriculture is shaky and Stephanie fears the program will be eliminated after she makes the switch.

Her extra-curricular activities include soccer and band. Stephanie and Jarod are Junior Holstein members. And, after seven years of piano lessons, Stephanie now teaches piano.

Her duties as dairy maid requires about one promotional event weekly.

As a member of the Dairy Bowl team, Stephanie was delighted to be a part of the Lebanon County team that placed third in the state this year. The team practiced twice weekly and required a lot of studying.

"I think my grades — especially Spanish — suffered a bit until the Dairy Bowl season was finished," Stephanie said.

After accomplishing the Dairy Bowl victory, Stephanie quickly made Spanish studying a priority and her grades reflect it.

Calling themselves, "cat lovers," Stephanie and Kathryn take a break to nuzzle their favorite cats.

In 4-H, Stephanie and her siblings are members of both the NoSoAnn Dairy Club and the South Mountain Club.

Annette taught 4-H cooking for six years and now teaches photography.

She said, "You don't need to be an expert on a subject to teach because 4-H has really helpful books."

To help educate the non-farming community, Stephanie and a friend prepared a video tape for a school project. She taped a cow having a calf. The calf's legs were twisted so on the video Stephanie explained why her father needed to straighten the legs so the calf could be delivered. The video included a tour of the farm.

For her video, a favorite by classmates and teachers, Stephanie received the highest grade in the class.

In addition to Stephanie's versatility with dairy, music, dairy bowl, Stephanie also claimed best of show at last year's Lebanon Fair for a decorated cake.

Stephanie has her career sights set on farming.

In addition to 4-H, Jarod plays baseball for a Little League team and is a member of Junior Holstein Club.

Kathryn has been playing community soccer for four years. She also plays flute in the school band and enjoys ceramics and photography, both learned in 4-H.

Dairy promotion plays a big role

A Hungry Child Cannot Learn

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Does everyone in your house have time for breakfast? It can be a real challenge in this fast paced life. But, what happens to a child in the middle of the morning at school if he/she has not eaten breakfast? Even more disturbing, what if that child went to bed hungry the night before? That child will not be able to concentrate; learning is interrupted until he or she eats. "A hungry child cannot learn."

If a child does not have good quality food during all periods of childhood, the cognitive development of that child is handicapped. Not enough food, or poor quality food can cause children to have behavior, attention and learning problems. Poor nutrition impacts school performance and the overall development of a child. Yet, this issue affects thousands of children each day. More importantly, it is so easy to prevent.

Conferences highlighting the relationship between nutrition and learning were recently held in Pittsburgh and Columbus, Ohio and were attended by more than 900 health professionals, school administrators, school food service personnel and educators. Conference participants gained specific information that will empower them to create a child-friendly nutrition environment promoting optimal health and learning.

Nationally known speakers provided insight and documentation on this nutrition and cognitive development phenomena.

Dr. Doris Dorelian recently completed research on the relationship between nutrition and learning. According to Dr. Dorelian, "school breakfast is the best nutritional bargain, unfortunately, many children don't take the time to eat breakfast at home."

Dorelian recommends a balanced breakfast including protein, complex carbohydrates and fat. This involves choosing foods from at least three of the five food groups (milk, meat, fruit, vegetable, and grain). She explains that a child who eats a breakfast containing only juice and dry cereal without milk will run out of energy by midmorning because the breakfast lacks protein and fat. A combination of the three necessary nutrients will provide enough energy for the entire morning. In addition to common breakfast choices such as cereal with milk and fruit, she suggests incorporating nontraditional foods like cold pizza or a peanut butter sandwich with a glass of milk.

The conferences were cosponsored by Dairy & Nutrition Council Mid East, state departments of education, state nutrition councils, school food service associations, dietetic associations, Kellogg Company, Kraft Company, and hunger advocacy groups: Just Harvest and Ohio Hunger Task Force.

Family Togetherness

in family life because Stephanie is a county dairy maid and her mother is coordinator for the dairy promotion committee. That means that Jarod and his dad need to shoulder more of the chores if the women have a promotional activity

Annette's responsibility as dairy promotion coordinator is made easier and enjoyable, she said, "because of six excellent committee members."

Family togetherness is not limited to farm and 4-H. The whole family works in the church nursery. They also hold Youth Roundups — hosting teens overnight and for breakfast on the family farm.

With so many different activities, the family needs lots of good, nutritious meals for energy. Lasagna is a family favorite and Harry's favorite dessert is one that is quite simple to make and does not require baking — Cream Cheese Pie.

CREAM CHEESE PIE

9-inch graham cracker crust
1 can sweetened condensed milk
8-ounces cream cheese
Juice of 1 fresh lemon

Do not substitute low-fat dairy products or use canned lemon juice for this recipe. Mix together milk, cream cheese, and lemon juice. Pour into cracker crumb pie crust. Chill for two hours before serving.

LASAGNA

1½ pounds ground beef
1 onion
1 large jar favorite spaghetti sauce
8 ounces mozarella cheese
Parmesan cheese
American cheese, 6 slices
Lasagna noodles

Cook lasagna noodles according to package directions. Saute onions with ground beef. Layer noodles with sauce, ground beef, and mozarella cheese. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Repeat layers. Top with American cheese slices. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

Egg-Breaking Recipes

Eggs are hard to beat for easy preparation, great versatility and delicious eating. Eggs are also one of nature's most nourishing foods.

However, the same nutrients that make eggs a high-quality food for humans can also be a good growth medium for bacteria.

About all reported cases of food poisoning associated with eggs or foods containing eggs have involved improper handling techniques used by restaurants and institutions.

Recent reports on food safety may have caused concern about preparation of some of your favorite egg dishes. There's no need to abandon traditional family recipes. Simply adopt new techniques.

Cooked egg nog is entirely safe and is much creamier and richer in texture than an uncooked nog. Cream pie fillings can be cooked too.

Scientific tests show that pie meringue baked as directed in this column is entirely safe.

For more information, write for "The Egg Handling and Care Guide." Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to The incredible edible egg #33, P.O. Box 733, Park Ridge, IL 60068-0733.

ANSWER — Ruth Erb, Beavertown, asked for a recipe for Apple Pandowdy. Thanks to Rachael Gromling, Manchester; Erla Shirk, Ephrata; Kathryn Jordan, Stewartstown; Marian Horst, Ephrata; Martha Putt, Schuylkill Haven; and many others for sending recipes. Surprisingly, all the recipes were the same. Rachael writes that she participated in an apple pandowdy baking contest more than 40 years ago in high school. The judges noticed that she forgot to add vanilla so she did not win.

Apple Pandowdy

1 quart sliced apples
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon butter
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Topping:

1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons baking powder
2½ tablespoons shortening
½ cup milk

Pare and slice apples. Place in bottom of large, flat baking dish. To make syrup, combine sugar, flour, salt, vinegar, and water.

Bring to boil and cook 2 minutes.

Remove from heat and add butter and vanilla. Cool. Pour cooled syrup over apples. Make topping by cutting shortening into sifted dry ingredients.

Add milk and stir only until mixture is wet. Drop topping by spoonfuls over apple mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for 35 minutes. Serve with rich milk or cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

ANSWER — Roland Kamoda, Monongahela, wanted a recipe for a good lamb stew. Thanks to Sarah Clark, Breezewood, for sending two.

End Of The Month Lamb Stew

3 pounds lamb stew meat, cubed
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon rosemary
½ teaspoon chili powder
1 cup red wine
1 teaspoon salt
2 bay leaves
2 tablespoon salad oil
2 tiny onions, peeled
6 carrots, diced
15-ounce can tomato sauce
6 small potatoes, cubed
1 clove garlic, peeled
1 cup red cooking wine
¾ pounds fresh string beans, halved

Wash the lamb shanks and dry with a damp towel. Mix the flour, salt, pepper, and chili powder well. Dip the lamb in this mixture and brown quickly in the heated oil in a large skillet. Drain off excess liquid and add the tomato sauce, garlic, water, rosemary, cooking wine, remaining salt, and bay leaves.

Simmer over low heat for approximately one hour or until tender. Add onions, carrots, beans, and potatoes, and continue simmering gently for 25 to 35 minutes or until all vegetables are cooked. Do not overcook. Pour the skillet contents into a greased casserole, cover and set aside for several hours in refrigerator. Twenty minutes before serving, bake casserole in 375 degree oven. Serves 6. Flavor improves when made ahead.

Lamb Stew

2 tablespoons flour

1½ pounds lamb, cubed
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons oil
¼ teaspoon dill weed
3 cups water
8 small onions
3 carrots, sliced
2 potatoes, cubed
½ cup light cream
1 tablespoon flour

Mix together 2 tablespoons flour, salt, and pepper. Roll meat in mixture. Brown in hot oil. Add dill weed and water. Cover; simmer 1½ hours. Add onions, carrots, and potatoes. TOP 10 REASONS

WHY YOU SHOULD BUY A TANCO BALE WRAPPER

TANCO	COMPETITION
1. Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.	Competition uses one central shaft to support the entire turntable mechanism
2. Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.	Competition uses either no belts between rollers, or multiple belts which can allow bales to sag and slip.
3. Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counter weights.	Competition must add counterweights or tandem axles as options to effectively handle silage bales.
4. Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.	Competition - None.
5. Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp." Once it "burps" the bale does not re-seal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.	Competition - optional drop mats or ramps available
6. Optional "High Rise" axle kit for soft ground conditions.	Compare!
7. Models available to fit every individual need, including machines to wrap big square bales. Tanco was first to build a large square bale wrapper, and continues to produce advancements in bale wrapping technology.	Limited product lines
8. Positive bale positioning: While being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.	Competition uses continuous hydraulic advance Bales can slip or over-rotate giving an uneven wrap
9. Durability: Tanco's subframe is one of the heaviest of any machines available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users.	Competition - Compare!
10. Price: From a basic 3 point Model AW200, to the trailed Model AW400 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices are very competitive. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.	Competition - Compare!

ANSWER — This is the last answer we will print for Vernon Bryant's inquiry about a formula for old-fashioned whitewash. Roy Leaman of 534 Park Drive, Boiling Springs, PA 17007, writes that there is a whitewash material available that is similar to materials used in the 1700s and 1800s by the new settlers in this country. Shellbond Products Inc. developed and patented the process using a kiln to make a whitewash from discarded sea shells, just as the settlers did. The processed shell will bond to wood or stone and can be used with oil instead of water, in which case it makes a water-repellent seal. The product may be applied to metals or painted surfaces if the painted surfaces are prepared by brushing off the flaky material. Colored chalk may be added if desired. Leaman is starting production of Shellbond Products on his farm near Carlisle in cooperation with his cousin Norman Filbert, who is the developer of the patented process and co-founder of the company. The product is $47 for a 30 pound bag or $74 for a 50 pound bag, which is ready to be mixed with water for application as a white wash. Contact him at the above address or call (717) 258-6247.

Once-Endangered Buffaloes Stampede To Revitalization

BRYAN HODGSON

National Geographic News Service

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. — If his grand vision comes true, a Lakota Indian named Fred DuBray will soon be able to plan the 20th century's greatest wild buffalo roundup, cutting Yellowstone's 4,000-animal herd in half.

"This hunt will be a little different," DuBray says. "We'll do it to save their lives."

Severe overcrowding in recent years has driven many of the park's buffaloes onto neighboring cattle ranches. In 1994, Montana game wardens shot about 400 of them to eliminate any chance that they could infect domestic cattle with brucellosis, a deadly bovine disease that causes spontaneous abortion.

Now, after years of letting the herd roam without supervision in order to duplicate natural conditions, the National Park Service has agreed to quarantine as many as 2,000 buffaloes for brucellosis testing and vaccination.

That's where DuBray hopes to come in. He is the founder of the Intertribal Bison Coalition, whose 33 member tribes are restoring buffalo herds to Indian reservations across the United States. The organization is a leading candidate to handle the difficult roundup and quarantine operation, which would be based on a fenced tract of adjacent U.S. Forest Service land.

"We're the best-equipped to do it," DuBray says. "We're experienced in handling the animals. They've been part of our culture for centuries. Besides that, we'll be able to use healthy animals for breeding. For the first time in years, the Yellowstone gene pool will become available to buffalo ranchers everywhere."

That any buffalo genes still exist is something of a miracle. Once the shaggy giants roamed North America 50 million strong, but by the end of the 19th century only about a thousand survived. Most experts believe that their numbers were reduced by commercial hunting, aided by a de facto government policy of eliminating the Plains Indians' main source of food.

Now some scientists raise the possibility that a disease like brucellosis, introduced with cattle imported from Europe, may have ravaged the herds at the same time hunters were killing prime animals by the hundreds of thousands.

"Settlers who crossed the plains on the Oregon Trail and other migration routes brought about 4 million cattle with them," says wildlife biologist William Alan Stumpf of Boise, Idaho, who has studied population dynamics of wild creatures for many years.

"Vaccination was unknown in those days," he says, "and it's reasonable to suppose that many of them carried the disease. Also, when the buffalo population crashed, the pronghorn antelope population crashed at the same time -- and they weren't being hunted."

Today, although several herds still carry the disease, their birth rate isn't affected by it -- strong evidence that a handful of survivors developed an immunity they passed along.

The buffalo's future is secure. Some 250,000 animals range parklands and private ranches from New York to Hawaii, from Canada to Oklahoma. The American Bison Association's membership has doubled to 2,300 since 1993, says president Bud Flocchini of Gillette, Wyo., whose family-owned Durham Ranches Co. maintains some 4,000 buffaloes.

"We've never seen such interest. Heifer calves are selling now for about $1,600 each, and 2-year-olds for up to $3,500. Last year, a champion blue-ribbon bull sold for $15,000," he tells National Geographic.

"But most buyers are small operators. We advise them to study the animal very carefully before getting started, and pay a lot of attention to fences. These animals are much tougher to work with than beef cattle. To produce income, you need between 50 to 100 head and around 300 acres of good pasture, with supplementary feed in the off season."

Seven of Yellowstone National Park's 4,000 bison cross a geyser basin in a wintertime quest for grass. Overcrowding has forced many of the buffaloes onto neighboring cattle ranches. Concerned about the possible spread of brucellosis, a deadly bovine disease, Montana game wardens shot 400 bison last year.

For people who can't invest thousands of dollars in a private herd, the Nature Conservancy offers a low-cost alternative. For a $25 donation, anyone can adopt a buffalo on the environmental organization's 37,000-acre Tallgrass Prairie Preserve in Osage County, Okla. The preserve is designed to restore an almost-vanished ecosystem, whose 10-foot-tall grasses once covered millions of acres.

"So far we've had a thousand or so individuals and groups signing up, including a lot of school classes," says public affairs representative Beth Daniel of San Francisco. "We received about 400 buffalo as a donation from a private rancher."

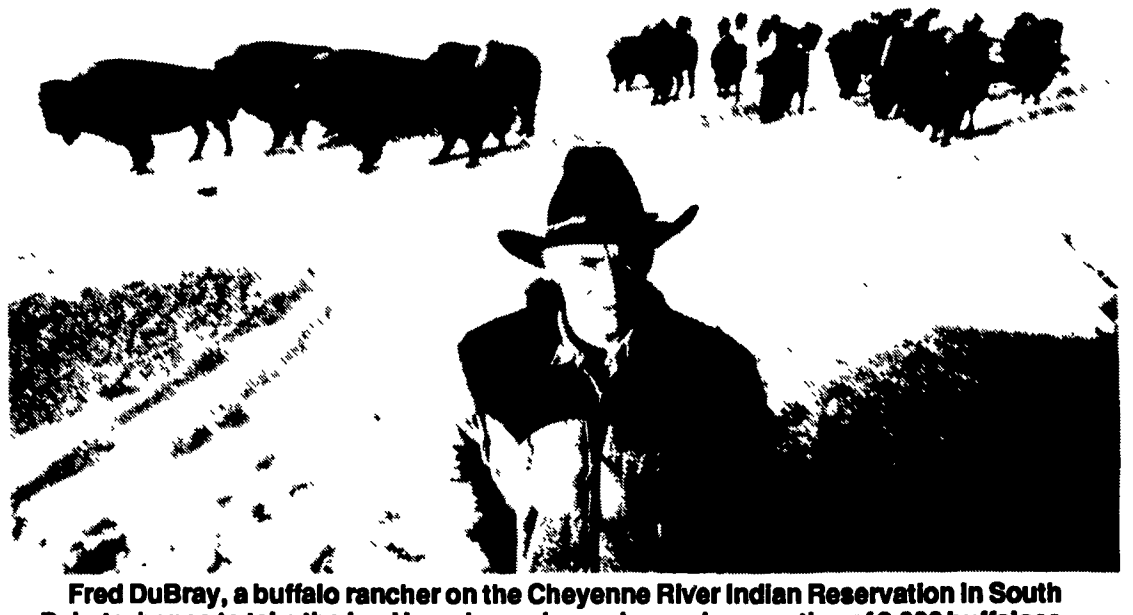
The bison association points with pride to the healthful qualities of buffalo meat, which is lower in cholesterol than chicken breast. To keep it that way, the association recommends that growers pledge not to use hormones or growth-stimulating drugs.

The meat is increasingly popular on human dining tables, as Sam Arnold knows. In 1994, he served some 50,000 buffalo dinners for about $1.5 million at his Fort restaurant west of Denver. Experience has made Arnold an ardent advocate of high quality-control standards in the buffalo industry.

"The first night I put buffalo on the menu, I had 52 dinners sent back because they were too tough," he says. "I never forgot that, and I've had long, serious talks with purveyors about standards. We've learned that one tough steak can sour a person on buffalo for life, and he'll tell his friends."

Fred DuBray has mixed feelings about the buffalo's new lease on life. Raising his own herd on the Cheyenne River reservation in South Dakota, he sees the animals as helping to restore Indian traditions and provide a healthy diet. Teaching young members of the tribe to herd the animals while riding bareback, he says, would imbue them with a sense of the pride and skill that placed their ancestors among the world's most formidable cavalrymen.

As for those who breed buffaloes to be show animals, DuBray offers a heartfelt plea: "Buffalo are wild animals, with all their survival instincts intact. The worst thing you could do is teach them to be cows.



Fred DuBray, a buffalo rancher on the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation in South Dakota, hopes to take the lead in a planned roundup and quarantine of 2,000 buffaloes in Yellowstone National Park, Wyo. He founded the Intertribal Bison Coalition, which seeks to restore buffalo herds to reservations.

Blacksmith Demonstration

Dial Gauge Pressure Canners Tested

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Dial gauge pressure canners will be tested on May 2 at the Berks County Agriculture Center, Leesport. Testing takes only five minutes and there is no charge. Call the office for an appointment. Improper temperatures result in food spoilage, failure of jars to seal, loss of liquid and even serious microbic toxins that could cause botulism. The lids with a weighted-gauge do not need to be checked.

Herb Program

LANDIS VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — Free program "Herbs Yesterday and Today" by Adrienne Lind will be held on Tuesday April 25 at Landis Valley Museum, Rt. 272 Oregon Pike, 2.5 miles north of Lancaster.

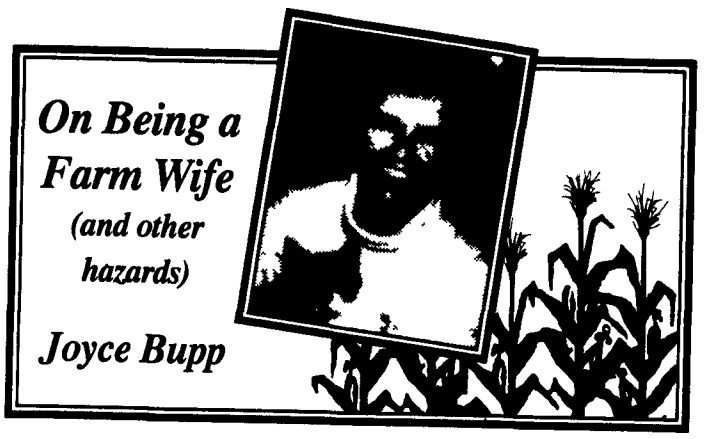
HELP YOURSELF



How lucky can one person get?

My flood of good fortune arrived via the regular daily mail delivery, stuck between three bills, a cattle sale flyer, two magazines and assorted, paper-wasting, trash-can-feeder junk. But these weren't "junk" pieces of mail. No indeed.

Both my sources of wonderful luck were on official certificates, with fancy edging, done up in the style of a graduation degree. One was a "certificate of notification," the other a "certificate of guarantee." Impressive, huh?

The fanciest one stated in official-looking print that yours truly is the "registered holder of this Certification of Notification," which was coming by first-class mail no less. And — drum roll, please — as part of a national promotion, I was receiving a "SPECTACULAR 7 DAY/6 NIGHT DREAM VACATION" to Florida and the Bahamas.

Hot diggety. Who couldn't use a "spectacular 7 day/6 night dream vacation?" Plus, if I called within 72 hours, a bonus "mini-vacation, including 3 exciting days and 2 nights in Magical Orlando." How could I pass this up?

The call went through, amazingly, on my second try to the toll-free phone number. What the heck, it was lunch time anyway; hearing the rest of the story on this "spectacular vacation" might be entertaining. Across the table, The Farmer fixed a "What in the world are you doing now?" look on me.

"Consumer research," I explained.

The perky voice at the other end went through a line of questions after pulling up my number on the computer, confirming my address. Was I married? Was my husband there?

"No," I lied, irritated to even be asked such an irrelevant question. "How'd you get my name?" She produced a vague response about random demographic selection related to purchasing power of holders of a couple of well-known, nationwide, credit-card companies.

This line went on for about six or eight minutes, with a pitch about the glorious Pompano Beach resort and all the enjoyable diversions offered by the cruise to the Bahamas, blah, blah, blah, etc., etc.

Finally, the hook on the dangling, baited fishline: "You can claim this spectacular vacation with the small promotional fee of only $199 per person . . ."

I hung up. Before she could ask for a credit card number.

Now, on to the "Certificate of Guarantee," stating "One of the following awards is yours!" "ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED . . . for your participation in our National Promotion."

These awards included: A Jeep Wrangler or $10,000 in cash, $3,000 U.S. savings bond, a "World Class Vacation Adventure!," an entertainment system or $1,000 in cash.

Though I tried several times — more consumer research — the toll-free number was always busy.

"If busy, keep calling," it stated right at the bottom of my Certificate of Guarantee. Since they gave me only 48 hours, someone else has surely claimed my Jeep Wrangler by now. Too bad.

But, this good luck must be hereditary. Just yesterday, our son related how he had been offered a free gift from a fishing magazine.

And all he had to do was send in three bucks . . .

Study Shows More Kids Rely On Shaky Welfare System

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — A Penn State study shows that rural and urban children are relying more heavily on a welfare system that's doing little to relieve poverty.

"The ameliorative effects of public assistance are not as great as people think," says Leif Jensen, an assistant professor of rural sociology. "Nonetheless, more so than urban poor children, those in rural areas may be going without benefits they need and deserve, especially if we consider children as the innocent victims of poverty.

"The welfare-policy debate needs to recognize that public assistance has always been more effective in relieving child poverty in urban than rural America."

Jensen and David Eggebeen, an associate professor of human development, analyzed U.S. Census data from 1970, 1980 and 1990. Their study was published in the journal Rural Sociology.

The researchers focused on poor families with children and found that the percentage of family income from parent's earnings declined continuously since 1969. At the same time, the percentage of family income from public assistance rose, even though the inflation-adjusted dollars received from public assistance declined.

This pattern of rising reliance on welfare and declining reliance on parental earnings was seen among both two-parent and female-headed families. The trends were sharpest in rural areas, although poor rural families continued to rely more on earnings and less on public assistance compared to poor urban families.

The researchers say that rural poor children were less likely — by about 15 percent in each decade — to receive public assistance than their urban counterparts.

Jensen and Eggebeen say that in 1990, 21.1 percent of rural children lived below the poverty line, compared to 18.2 percent of urban children.

"An implication is that welfare is not as effective in rural America," Jensen says. "Rural children are a group at higher risk of poverty, yet their parents are underutilizing one of the main programs to help them."

The study also indicates that public assistance offers only modest ability to improve the status of poor children, with rural youngsters at a disadvantage.

In 1969, for instance, 14.9 percent of rural children with pre-welfare income below half the poverty line were brought out of "deep poverty" when public assistance was factored in, Jensen says. In contrast, the corresponding effect for urban children was 33.2 percent.

The researchers say that their findings about the effects of public assistance suggest the need for strategies that improve employment opportunities for low-income families.

"Policies to increase job opportunities must include efforts to make work pay a living wage," Jensen says. "Regardless of whether the minimum wage is raised, it should at least be pegged to the rate of inflation to keep pace with the cost of living."

The study suggests that employment initiatives would have more immediate and beneficial effects on rural poor children, Jensen says. Poor rural parents have a stronger attachment to the labor force compared to urban parents, and there is evidence they are more likely to shun public assistance, he says.

A Cottage Industry Is Born

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

DANVILLE (Montour Co.) — Never one to be afraid of hard work, LaVerne Hensley's only complaint is not having enough hours in her day.

Running a knitting business from her home while tending the flock of Merino sheep that reside on the hillside of Whispering Oaks Farm would easily fill a 40-hour week. But, LaVerne is also a mother of three active children and the wife of busy pediatrician Steve Wolfe.

LaVerne began knitting as a child and first learned of cottage industries when touring England as a college student. "I found it fascinating that freelance knitting could be done in the home and sold all over the world. A seed of inspiration was planted and it kept growing until I finally started my own business right here in Pennsylvania."

It was in England that LaVerne also became aware of the many beautiful patterns of crocheted wool as well as the textures of the wool from various breeds of sheep.

Climbing the hill to the flock which has been rounded up by the collie.

Her flock of 45 Merinos, seasoned with a few Rambouillets thrive on 35 acres carved out of virgin Pennsylvania land.

A former pediatric nurse, LaVerne says she met her husband while both were taking care of premature babies at a hospital in Virginia.

"One night during the winter of 1994, when the snow was deep and the wind was howling, we were delivering lambs, hooking the preemies up to IVs, and setting up our own intensive care unit, when we looked at each other and both started to laugh," LaVerne says.

"We realized we'd both been working in pediatrics of one kind or another for a very long time. It's amazing how one aspect of your life will carry over into another."

It was only a little more than a year ago that LaVerne was finally able to realize her dream of employing local residents to knit or crochet items from wool. Ladies, from young mothers to senior citizens, have been skillfully and creatively turning out dresser scarves, table runners, tablecloths, and sweaters in a variety of patterns completed with authentic antique buttons, and socks.

Prices range from $10 for a pair of socks to $200 for a tablecloth. "We like to think of our products as heirlooms to pass on to future

Student Sets Up Recycling Center For School Project

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

PORTAGE (Cambria Co.) — Mike Conlon, a junior at Portage Area High School, attended the Governor's School of Excellence for Agricultural Sciences during the summer of 1994. It was during this five-week session at Penn State University that it was suggested to the students that they use their leadership ability and knowledge to do something that would benefit their communities. Mike returned home with an enthusiasm for doing a recycling project.

Mike is extremely interested in environmental issues. This particular Governor's School attracted him because of its broad spectrum of ag-related courses including those concerning environmental problems. Sixty-four high school sophomores and juniors from across the state attended these classes.

"Recycling" and "Community Service" are the basis of his "paper-to-food" project. Mary Kenney, local high school science teacher and sponsor of the Portage Area High School Environmental Club, helped Mike in fine-tuning his idea.

Mike is the project coordinator and is assisted by other club members. He explains that the purpose of the project is threefold: first of all, to recycle old newspapers; second, to help local dairy farmers who are able to use shredded newspapers for animal bedding; and third, to assist local needy families with vouchers for dairy products.

Club members made posters advertising their newspaper drive and placed them in many places throughout the community. Portage Area High School has a morning television show and advertisements and project goals were outlined on this show. Mike is the "Anchor Man" for the school T.V. news.

Mike, along with other club members, has been at the high school each Monday evening since the beginning of November to receive newspapers from local residents. As soon as a full truck load is collected they then take the truck to Vale Wood Farms in Munster and unload at the barns. Vale Wood has a shredder and shreds the paper as it is needed for bedding. This trip to Vale Wood is made on Saturday mornings as the loading and unloading requires a few hours of time.

The papers are measured (a certain number of inches of paper is equal to one pound) and a refund rate of between one-half cent and one cent per pound is credited in the form of vouchers. These vouchers are then distributed to local needy families and can be redeemed for dairy products. The vouchers, which were earned in November, made the Thanksgiving holiday a little brighter for those who received them.

The Conlon family is very supportive of one another. Doug and Sue, Mike's father and mother, are both employed by the local school district — Doug as a guidance counselor and Sue as a physical education and health teacher. Acquaintances of the family say it is easy to understand where Mike gets his sense of committment. Both Doug and Sue have been involved in many activities that benefit area youth. Younger sister Molly is a freshman at Portage Area where she is also involved in many activities.

Mike is an honor student and is committed to numerous extracurricular activities some of which include the environmental club, SADD, Student Council, sports, National Honor Society, Peer Tutoring Program, Peer Counselor Program and many others. Besides school-related activities, he enjoys archery hunting and music. He has received numerous honors over the past few years with the latest coming just a few days ago. Mike has been chosen as Pennsylvania's Ambassador for the EF Ambassador Tour. Representing Pennsylvania, he, along with 50 U.S. and 11 Canadian student delegates, will take a 10-day educational tour of Europe this summer. This is quite a prestigious award. Doug is very proud of his son's accomplishment and feels that this may be one consequence of his attendance at the Governor's School and also his participation in the "recycling" leadership project.

On reflecting back to last summer's time spent at PSU, Mike says that the Governor's School was one of the best experiences of his life. One highlight was the friendships formed with other students over the five-week period. Another highlight was more personal. "Besides the educational advantages of using the Penn State science labs and their instructors, I learned about myself."

The recycling project is important because it is helping him to see that people want to recycle and will cooperate. "Perhaps all that is needed is to have the programs available and for someone to take charge."

Mike's future plans include college, perhaps at a service academy most likely majoring in some type of environmental study.

Mike Conlon helps a local resident unload newspapers that she brought to the school for the recycling project.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

We've just had a long visit with one of our children and her family from Atlanta. It was different to have youngsters in the house. The girls were not very good eaters but they liked my blueberry pancakes and the scrambled eggs with bacon for breakfast.

We visited the Hans Herr house near Lancaster as it is the oldest house in our area and it was used as both a dwelling and a meeting house. I'd been there at least four times before, but because my husband's grandmother was a "Herr" they wanted to see it again. Now they are back home and I'll miss all those hugs that I got each morning.

Today I am studying to teach our Bible Study group tomorrow. As our daughter-in-law is in Chicago for a week, I ask our son to come for dinner again. He was here the other day and I made pig stomach as it was nice to have a guest to help us eat it. But since I also have a large committee meeting here tonight, who will expect refreshments, I expected to be quite busy.

Thus, when my husband ask me to have dinner in his camper, that he bought recently, I was reluctant as I thought he wanted me to cook in it. But, he said that he would do it. I was really amazed as he has never done something like that before. He went to the grocery store alone so I shall be surprised.

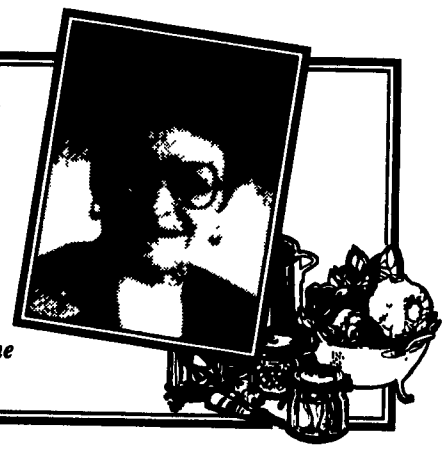
He has been working on the camper all winter trying to figure out where all the wires go and fixing the lights and brakes. He even bought a generator and has asked me to supply pots, pans, silverware and dishes. He is more enthusiastic than I am to use it for camping.

Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



There was a time when it was possible to tell the season by the menu...such as apple pie in the fall, strawberry shortcake in June, and fryer chicken in the spring. Nowadays, the miracles of farm production, processing, packaging, and super-fast transportation have all but erased seasons as far as foods are concerned.

Foods still have seasons of heaviest supply even though they might be available most of the year. Now is the season for asparagus, artichokes, various kinds of greens, rhubarb and pineapple.

These seasonal products are all at or near peak supply this month, but consumers need to take advantage of asparagus now because its season is very short. California asparagus production arrives on the market first followed by New Jersey in late April and early May. About one-third of the yearly crop is sold in April.

Rain and stormy weather have hampered growth and harvesting in many California producing areas. As a result quality and prices are variable and you'll see prices will fall as shipments increase. Also look for locally grown asparagus.

You'll want to look for top quality asparagus which has firm, brittle, bright green stalks and tightly-closed, well-formed heads that are purplish-green in color. If the tips or heads are feathered, the asparagus is past its prime. Thick stalks will be more tender than thin, spindly ones.

April brings peaking supplies of fresh pineapples. Flavor as well as color will be different for pineapples from different countries. Mexico and Puerto Rico are the principle sources for our pineapple, although a few from Hawaii find their way to eastern markets.

Depending on variety, pineapples vary in color from red to green to yellow. They will change color at room temperature.

Select one with a rich, sweet fragrant aroma. If the temperature is too low the fragrance may be hard to detect. You might try thumping the fruit. If the pineapple sounds hollow it is immature. So choose one with the dullest thud.

Color is not an accurate guide to selecting, neither is pulling a crown leaf and thumping takes a lot of practice, so your best bet is to let your nose guide you.

Artichokes — the gourmet's delight from the central coast of California is easy to cook, fun to eat and delicious! Artichokes are a go-anywhere, be-anything food, from a simple snack to an elegant entree.

When to buy: you'll find artichokes in most markets year round. The peak season is in the spring — March, April and May. November through February it's winter kissed time — artichokes touched by frost and colored bronze to brown on the outer leaves. These are premier artichokes — tender and tasty.

How to buy: choose artichokes that are heavy for their size, compact and firm in the winter and spring; somewhat flared and conical in the summer and fall. Artichokes come in sizes baby to jumbo and all are mature. Any size may be boiled or steamed. Small artichokes are better for sauteing, stews, marinating and casseroles. Medium sizes are great for salads and snacks...the largest for stuffing and main dishes.

generations," LaVerne explains. "And, we also think of them as works of art."

A German lady with two-year-old twins is one of her fastest knitters. "She sits on a high stool in the middle of the twins' playroom where she can keep an eye on them," LaVerne said.

Another lady in her 70s can turn out several sweaters a month.

Last year, more than 500 pounds of wool was used by the Knit-Design Studio. All of it came from sheep raised in the Danville area. "Some of the local farmers are willing to trade their wool for knitted wool socks for the family," LaVerne said.

The wool is also washed, carded, and spun into yarn locally.

Orders are by word of mouth or through an ad placed in Yankee Magazine. LaVerne is presently looking for other outlets for marketing and will have a mail-order brochure ready by fall.

The entrepreneur also does some of her own knitting and has several weaving and knitting machines in the large sunny room she uses for her studio. Prior to setting up her own business, she traveled about New England demonstrating knitting machines for the White Company.

When she isn't overseeing her home knitters, LaVerne is teaching a knitting class at nearby Bucknell University. "You can't imagine the satisfaction I get from teaching students to knit," she beams. "It is such a delight to see the expression on the face of someone who has just completed her first handmade sweater."

LaVerne and her husband have three children, ages 13, 10, and 2. They also have several Haflinger horses and a "just learning" Border collie.

For anyone wishing more information from LaVerne, she can be reached at Whispering Oaks Farm, RD 1, Box 160-D, Danville, PA 17821.

This is the third in a series of articles on WWII Victory Gardens.

For victory garden planting and seed starting suggestions, contact the Extension office. For a limited time a packet of gardening guides is available for $5.50 at the York County Extension office. Call (717) 757-9657. The packet contains a victory garden guide, seed planting guide, vegetable growing fact sheets and more.

Vegetable gardens were enthusiastically planted from 1943 to 1946. Victory gardens in 1945 supplied more than a third of all vegetables consumed in the United States. Officials at all levels of government explained the need for gardening as a source of food. Today, backyard gardens supply only a fraction of what we can consume of vegetables. In many gardens only specialty vegetables particular family favorites are grown like sweet corn, salsify or chinese cabbage.

Each vegetable type requires a different amount of space. Crops requiring added space include peas, sweet corn, snap beans, and muskmelons. The same garden vegetables challenge us today as 50 years ago.

Muskmelons, watermelon, celery, cauliflower, brussel sprouts, eggplant and potatoes are risky for the first-time gardener.

Many of the crops grown for winter storage are particularly easy. Why not try carrots, beets, rutabagas, kohlrabi, turnips, salsify, danish cabbage, red cabbage, and chinese cabbage.

Locate your victory vegetable garden to allow a minimum of six hours of direct morning and afternoon sun. Keep away from large trees especially black walnut and butternut trees. Both these trees produce a toxin known as "Juglone." When present in the soil, affected plants frequently wilt, turn yellow and eventually die.

Vegetables sensitive to the toxin include tomato, potato, pea, cabbage, muskmelon, and others. Many ornamental plants and fruit trees are also sensitive including apple, pear, sour cherry, red pine, white pine and Rhododendron.

Remember that buildings and fences cast shadows and provide unwanted shade. Plant climbers like beans to the north, short crops to the south. Bring in topsoil or compost if poor garden soil conditions exist.

In the early '40s gardeners were admonished not to waste seeds. Today, even if seeds have been stored under optimal conditions, it's a good idea to do a germination test to check on seed viability before doing any serious propagation. The procedure is simple: place 10 seeds between moist paper towels or cover with a thin layer of soil. Be sure to keep the seed moist at all times and place in a warm location (the top of the fridge is a good place, and a good reason to clean there!)

Wait for the usual germination time required for those particular seeds (this is stated on the packet - a good reason for keeping the original packet). If fewer than six seeds germinate, it's a good idea to buy a fresh batch. However, if you can't bear to throw those seeds away, just sow them extra thick and be prepared for another purchase if not enough plants are produced.

Do not plant seeds when the soil is too wet. Soil should be loose and soft. Avoid planting fine seeds when the soil is wet. To retain moisture after planting, cover seeds immediately. Firm the soil lightly. Cover summer seeded vegetables with a board to retain moisture.

CHAOS, CERTAINTY AND CHICKENS

Dr. William B. Roush
Associate Professor
Poultry Science

When the word "chaos" is mentioned, usually the picture that comes to mind is complete disorder and utter confusion.

In the past 20 years, a new science has been developed by physicists and mathematicians which gives a new meaning for chaos.

The mathematical definition of chaos is random behavior in an ordered system. That is, the results of research in the area of physics and mathematics show cases where some responses which appear to be random can be shown to have order.

The phenomenon of chaos was found by Edward Lorenz, a meteorologist. In 1960, Lorenz was examining a computer model of a simple weather system. He found something strange. While inadvertently putting numbers in the program that differed only by less than one part per thousand, he discovered that the resulting weather projections soon diverged farther and farther until they bore no discernible relation to each other.

With this simple model and primitive computer equipment, he had discovered that systems which are described by nonlinear equations can be extremely sensitive to small changes, often resulting in "chaotic" behavior. Linear systems, on the other hand, are more robust in that small differences in initial conditions lead only to small differences in the final result.

Robert May, a theoretical biologist, wrote a paper in 1976 that is now a classic in chaos theory. He gave an example of a simple equation used to study population growth. The equation is X' = AX (1-X), where X' is the population for one year, X is the population of the preceding year, and A is a parameter that varies between 0 and 4.

To examine chaos theory, here is something you can try with your calculator. Or, if you have a computer you might try the following BASIC program:

10    INPUT A
20    X = .3
30    For I = 1 TO 150
40    X - A*X*(1-X)
50    PRINT X
60    NEXT I
70    END

To make things simple, suppose X and X' are numbers between 0 and 1 with the true population a million times these values. Suppose the population (X) is .3 (ie - 300,000) and A = .2. Plugging in the numbers 2(.3)(.7), you get .42. To obtain the next year's population plug .42 (this is the new X or old X') into the formula 2(.42)(.58) or approximately .4872. Using the same procedure, three years and thereafter, the population stabilizes at .5. In fact, whatever the original population size, the population will stabilize at .5. If A is increased to 2.6 the population eventually stabilizes at, approximately, .62.

Now increase the value for A to 3.2. The population no longer stabilizes to one number, but eventually alters between two values, approximately .5 and .8. As you raise the value of A to 3.5 the numbers alter between four numbers, approximately .38, .83, .5, and .88. Increasing the A value a little more causes an alteration between eight numbers. The doubling of the number of values continues as the value for A is increased.

Then suddenly, at approximately A = 3.57, the number of values grows to infinity the population goes into "chaos." The effect is very apparent if it is graphed. All this from the seemingly simple equation AX(1-X).

An interesting attribute of this equation is that there is a paradox to this chaotic behavior. Although the responses appear chaotic over a certain time period, if the responses are plotted as one time period against another time period (X versus X'), a form or structure for the responses becomes apparent.

The discovery of the mathematics of chaos dispels an illusion that mathematics is always certain. In science there is always the goal to define biological organisms and their surroundings in a certain, accurate, and precise manner. While in certain controlled situations mathematics can define outcomes precisely, attempts to model nature and its factors are more complex and variable.

The results of chaos and the behavior of nonlinear systems have implications in a number of fields such as physiclogy, chemistry, and economics. For example, it has been shown that physiological systems, including the hormone system, heart rhythms, and breathing can exhibit chaotic behavior under certain circumstances.

So what does this have to do with chickens? It so happens that the equation illustrated by May in 1976 is very similar to an equation used to describe growth in animals. This observation has led to studies at Penn State with broiler chickens that have shown that day-to-day growth rate shows evidence of chaotic responses (random but ordered values). These mathematical studies with poultry may give insight into the control of disease conditions such as ascites which are associated with increased growth rate.

For more information on the mathematics of chaos, the books "Chaos: Making A New Science" by James Gleick and "Does God Play Dice: The Mathematics Of Chaos" by Ian Stewart are suggested. Both of these can be obtained from or ordered at your local bookstore.

Low Cottonseed Prices Predicted

RALEIGH, N.C. — Over the past few months, cottonseed prices have been trending lower, and according to Steve Owen, that trend could continue well into 1996.

Owen, editor of Cottonseed Digest, said the downward spiral began in late November when the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced a zero set-aside on cotton. Combine that with the prediction of another possible record-breaking cotton crop for next year and carryover of 1.0 million short tons of cottonseed from this year, and Owen indicates that low prices are inevitable.

"For the balance of this year and next year, it looks like cottonseed will be priced at a level where dairymen really can't afford not to be feeding it," Owen said.

But according to Owen, old crop prices haven't reached the point that will bring new consumers into the market, which is what is needed to bring old crop inventory down. He said there has been some increase in usage primarily from dairymen already feeding cottonseed, but not enough to reduce inventories and put a floor on prices.

"There are a lot of things yet to happen in the market," Owen said. "It looks like it (the cottonseed market) wants to drift lower. It certainly isn't going any higher at this point in time unless seed prices come down to where they will increase demand."

Tom Wedegaertner, associate director of cottonseed research and marketing for Cotton Incorporated, agrees. He said a lower than expected cottonseed crush, combined with lower demand for cottonseed exports and high cottonseed inventories, have caused seed prices to decline dramatically over the past few months.

"The USDA released in its April 11 report that ending stocks are estimated at 1.0 million short tons, 275,000 short tons more than the Feb. 10 report," he said. "This large increase in ending stocks is a major reason we're seeing these low cottonseed prices now and into the future."

Although cottonseed prices have declined dramatically, inventories have not decreased. Wedegaertner said this is partially because dairy producers are waiting for the price to drop even further.

"Cotton farmers and farmers in general had a good growing season last year and prices for other feedstuffs have remained relatively low. Combine that with a mild winter and we're just not seeing increased demand for cottonseed right now," he said. "But with another large crop projected, it's going to be a good year for dairy producers who are feeding cottonseed."

When it comes to buying cottonseed, Owen says producers should be wary about purchasing all their cottonseed feeding needs at once.

"Dairymen usually try to pick the bottom of the market, and it just is hard to do. I encourage them to set a buying strategy and stick with it. They should plan on forward contracting for one-third to one-half of their needs during harvest, then buy another third or half in the spot market after harvest. That will give them a good average price," he said.

Wedegaertner said there are a variety of ways producers can purchase cottonseed. New crop contracts start with October, November, December (OND), the primary harvest period. This is the traditional pattern to establish market carryover. These contracts typically cover three-month periods and begin trading six months to a year in advance. The two longer periods are January to September and "clock" contracts which run from October to September.

The "spot" market is the cottonseed market trading for a given day or week. According to Wedegaertner, this is the buying method most producers use now because these prices sometimes become a bargain and the only reason to forward contract is to "lock in" a low price.

Owen said dairy producers may want to consider keeping a closer eye on the market and possibly purchasing new crop cottonseed soon because there's always a chance the weather could affect prices during the growing season, especially during planting (April and May).

"We're still dealing with a lot of variables in the market, including the weather. The El Nino system continues to affect the weather, especially in the United States, and currently the major cotton growing region of west Texas is going through a drought. Of course there's always a chance a hurricane could threaten cotton-producing states on the Gulf of Mexico," he said.

"At today's levels it's not good business for dairymen not to be buying seed. It's too good of dairy feed not to use it," he said. "This year dairymen are going to be the biggest benefactors of inexpensive prices because their overall feed costs are going to go down dramatically."

According to Wedegaertner cottonseed has proven to be both cost-efficient and nutritionally effective for high-producing dairy herds. He says data shows that in most cases, cottonseed should be fed at a rate of 5 to 8 pounds per cow per day.

Owen said that right now dairy producers are faced with a golden opportunity. "If dairymen would look at cottonseed as the complete feed, providing fiber, fat and protein, it's difficult to find a better alternative. Producers should be able to begin a cottonseed feeding program and stick with it economically for at least a year to 18 months. If this pricing trend continues, they may even want to consider feeding it to dry cows and heifers."

UNIONTOWN (Fayette Co.) — The annual Fayette County Agronomy Day was recently held at Greenline Supply, Inc., a farm machinery dealer located north of Uniontown.

Speakers and the topics they presented included: Anna Sarver, USDA Consolidated Farm Service, "1995 Crop Insurance"; Glenn Kerr, Brubaker Crop Consultants, "Legal Requirements of Pesticide Management" and "Comparing Pesticide Record Keeping Systems"; William F. Gallagher, extension agent, "Pesticide Management Survey"; and Donald C. Freets, agronomy extension agent, "Management of Field Crop Insects."

Eight agribusiness representatives erected commercial displays and spoke briefly to the more than 175 individuals gathered for the meeting about the products they manufacture or market. Exhibits displayed included seed suppliers, crop insurance providers, and a fresh water display.

Richard Burd, a crop producer, was awarded ribbons for his corn crop management in 1994. Enrolled in the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn contest, supported by the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association, Pennsylvania Seedsmen Association, and the Commercial Seed Industry, Richard was awarded a red (second place) ribbon for a three-year average yield of 145.0 bushels per acre and a white (third place) ribbon for a yield of 114.7 bushels per acre for a three-acre or larger plot.

The 175 crop producers who were in attendance and purchase or apply crop pesticides received continuing education credits toward the maintenance of their pesticide application license.

Pennfield Adds Dairy Salesman

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—Pennfield Corporation, feed sales division, announced the addition of Perry Morrison as a dairy sales and serviceman. Morrison, as a Pennfield sales and service representative, will service the eastern Lancaster County area. He was previously employed with Atlantic Breeders as a sales technician for seven years.

Perry Morrison

We hear you.

We know that making hay can be one of the hardest, hottest, dustiest jobs a farmer has to face. And a big gamble, too, when bad weather is on the horizon.

So when you asked for a tractor with the power and versatility to handle every haying operation from cutting and conditioning to baling and transporting, we heard you.

When you said you needed a tractor with a full complement of features, yet sized just right for utility applications, we heard you.

And when you told us you needed the kind of reliability and durability that'll never leave another windrow stranded in a wet field, we heard you.

And we responded with even more improvements to the industry's most advanced mid-range tractors, the Case International MAXXUM® 5200 Series.

That's why you'll now find a handy "neutral" position built into the standard full-power MAXXUM shuttle shift, allowing you to put the tractor in neutral without using the foot clutch - a real convenience when tying off round bales.

The MAXXUM cab is now more monitor-friendly than ever, with easy rear-window cable access and two new mounting points in the cab - a definite advantage when working with productive, monitored haying equipment.

And as always, every MAXXUM is built big-tractor heavy, with 2 1/2 in. thick cast frame rails, 7700 lbs. of rear-hitch capacity, and an expansive cab with 44 sq. ft. of glass - an indispensable benefit when keeping an eye on the windrow or working with high-productivity tools like the Case International 8312 Disc Mower Conditioner.

What size MAXXUM is right for you? With four models ranging from 80 to 112 PTO hp, you'll have a lot to discuss with your Case IH dealer. And remember to ask about Total Product Support, our commitment to the service and parts that turn a sale into a true partnership.

Farmers Research New Marketing Approaches

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Marketing agricultural products in an increasingly competitive world is becoming a serious problem for the American farmer.

Faced with increasing competition from abroad, increasing operating costs for machinery, supplies, and equipment, and lower prices for most of the commodities produced, farmers across the nation must look for new ways to market their products. As traditional marketing avenues begin to lose some of their effectiveness, new ideas and marketing approaches are critically needed.

One such approach is currently making the rounds in farming circles. The idea is simple in conception and involves the bartering of processed agricultural products in the international market. With milk prices running below $13 per hundred weight, the notion of bartering cheese, butter, evaporated and powdered milk on the international market for manufactured goods that can be sold in the United States for a higher price has attracted the attention of a number of Pennsylvania farmers.

On March 27, a group of about 50 interested Lancaster County farmers met at the Hoffman Building in Quarryville to discuss the possibility of producers' using a vertical integration strategy to improve the profitability of farming operations. Discussion included how the idea might be implemented, timeframes for doing so, and how the concept fits into established farm business procedures. Farmers at the meeting were unanimous in their feeling that this approach was worthy of additional study and approved the establishment of a commission to pursue the matter.

Among the reasons cited for moving in this direction was the desirability of marketing processed farm products in other countries such as the former Soviet Bloc, the Southeast Asia Trade Bloc, and South America where supply is lower and demand is higher. Traditional marketing techniques break down in those areas due to the lack of hard currencies. Bartering overcomes that barrier by accepting a marketable manufactured product rather than hard currencies.

At the initial meeting of the approved commission on April 10 at a farm in the Quarryville area, an organizational structure was established and a name was adopted.

Farmers interested in charter participation may request additional information by writing to Allen Weicksel at 1718 Slate Hill Road, Peach Bottom, PA 17563 or Robert Wenger, 176 Cardinal Drive, Quarryville, PA 17566

More Than 80 Compete In First Beef Expo Judging Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — More than 80 beef cattle enthusiasts from Maryland, New Jersey, West Virginia, Rhode Island, New York, and Pennsylvania competed in the first beef cattle judging contest ever held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Beef Expo, held recently in Harrisburg.

The judging contest was added to a slate of youth activities featured annually at the Beef Expo, which is primarily an educational program and merchandising tool to showcase some of Pennsylvania's finest beef cattle.

Cattle breeders from across the commonwealth were receptive to the idea and cooperated by providing their cattle for use in the contest. Contestants were required to place six classes of beef cattle, including March Angus heifers, Simmental bulls, January Angus heifers, Limousin heifers, prospect steers, and Simmental heifers.

They also were required to answer 10 questions about the cattle for the classes of Simmental bulls and Limousin heifers. The questions were used to break ties in the absence of oral reasons. Everyone competed as individuals in one of three age divisions, including beginner (12 years of age and younger), intermediate (ages 13 through 20), and adult (21 and older).

Rosettes were presented to the top 10 individuals in each division, whose scores are listed below.

Keith Bryan, instructor and coach of the Penn State Livestock Judging Team, directed the contest, assisted by former members of Penn State Judging Teams and current members of the Penn State Block and Bridle Club, and employees of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, all who helped with organization, scoring, official placings. and contest questions.

Surge Offers Heavy Duty Parallel Stalls

NAPERVILLE, Ill.—The new Surge Parallel Stalls, manufactured by Norbco Inc., are maximum strength, heavy-duty parallel parlor stalls and are available in Group and Individual Indexing configurations.

Distributed exclusively through the Surge dealer organization, the Surge Super 90G is a group indexing parallel stall that is suitable for a wide range of parlor applications and sizes ranging from a single-4 to a double-40 and larger. Also available through the Surge dealer is the Surge Magnum 90i, an individual indexing stall that is ideally suited for commercial style installations where rugged construction and durability are critical.

The exclusive, automatic gravity controlled exit/indexing gates of the Surge Super 90G require no springs or air cylinders to index cows. The unique "S" shaped gates provide maximum clearance for easy cow entry and exit. Each group of cows (3 to 5) is gently restrained at the shoulder and gradually positioned for optimum udder access and milking unit attachment.

Sharing similar features and benefits as the group indexing, the Surge Magnum 90i indexes each cow individually for added cow comfort and greater udder accessibility. Individual indexing also allows individual release of selected cows for convenient herd sorting for breeding and veterinarian health checks.

The Surge Super 90G and the Magnum 90i are constructed of galvanized heavy-wall 2 ½ inch outside diameter square-tube arches and 5 ½ inch outside diameter pipe columns provide maximum strength, durability, and long service life.

The Surge® exclusive Super 90I has the innovative and automatic gravity controlled exit gates that require no springs or air cylinders to index cows. The unique "S" shaped gates provide maximum clearance for easy cow entry and exit.

PLANNING FOR 1995 FEED STORAGE...
WILTED HAY...SILAGE...HI-MOISTURE GRAINS

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"The major costs on dairy and livestock farms are related to FEED: production - harvesting - storage - purchases - delivery to animals."

Significant savings in time and money are possible when you store and deliver your forage from a poured concrete silo, equipped with a Big Jim Distributor/ Unloader.

Protect your valuable forages from rain, sleet, snow, mud, ice and wind. Reduce the stress! Increase the efficiency of your feeds, labor, and livestock.

At SOLLENBERGER SILOS CORP. we know a lot about feed storage and handling... we've been in the business since 1908. If you are thinking about new or additional feed storage, give us a call. We'd like to contribute to your success.

NOTHING WORKS LIKE A SILO Sollenberger Silos Corp.

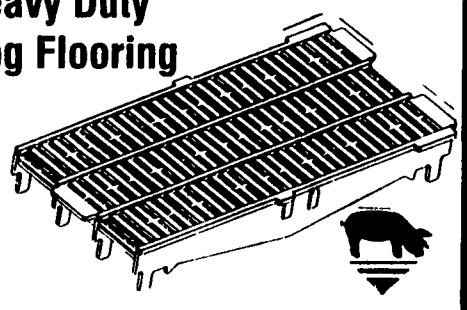
Polygrate™

Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Farocx has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- ◆ POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

- ◆ More piglets survive until weaning
- ◆ Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- ◆ Heavier piglets at weaning
- ◆ Better conditioned sows at weaning

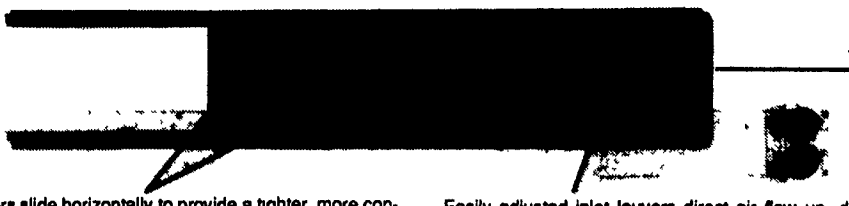
Inlet System



Inlet doors slide horizontally to provide a tighter, more controllable opening during critical minimum ventilation periods. Inlets can open from a minimum of 1/2 inch (13 mm) all the way up to 48 inches (1.2m) wide.

Easily adjusted inlet louvers direct air flow up, down, or straight out into buildings. Louvers operate independently of inlet openings to give you full control of air direction at all opening widths.

Authorized CHORE-TIME master distributor since 1982

N.J. Ag Society Honors Duffield

CLAYTON, N.J.—David Duffield, owner and operator of Duffield's Farm Market in Sewell, was recently honored by the New Jersey Agricultural Society with its 1995 Agricultural Marketing Award at the state agricultural convention in Atlantic City.

Duffield was recognized, along with his wife Mary, by the Society For Excellence in Marketing, according to Ray Blew, president of the society.

Presenting the award on behalf of the society was Jerry Frecon, agricultural agent with Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Gloucester County. Frecon not only acknowledged David Duffield but also his wife Mary, sons David and Dan (in charge of production and harvesting), daughter Debbie Grelli, and daughters-in-law Tracy and Ruth Ann (management of the farm market, deli and bake shop).

Said Frecon, "Dave started farming on his own in 1953 and after marrying Mary in 1960 began selling produce off a small stand in front of their house. This small stand grew to a modest 36-foot by 40-foot open building and then later to a fully enclosed air-conditioned market with cold storage, grading area, and dry storage. As the market expanded, a bake shop, full-line delicatessen and kitchen have brought it to its current size."

Frecon also said, "Outside the market is a modern spacious parking lot, a large plastic house for bedding plant sales, small wooden gazebo for gift sales, a petting zoo with a variety of animals, a fenced-in picnic area, and a large shaded area for festivals and fairs run both dependently, or independently with the Duffields' business.

"The Duffield market is a tremendous asset to the community" said Frecon "concurrently, with the market 20 to 30 acres of strawberries and peas are u-picked in the field in May and June, and a large field of pumpkins is u-picked in a staged location in September and October."

Said Frecon, "The Duffields have a unique agribusiness that employs from 50 to 100 people, not including many friends and community families involved in festivals, hay rides, Easter Bunny trips, and much more."

Frecon recognized David Duffield for the tremendous level of knowledge and talent it takes to not only manage a diversified marketing operation but also the ability to grow a wide variety of fruits and vegetables on approximately 200 acres of wind-swept sandy loam and loamy sand soils in rapidly growing Washington Township.

Mid-Atlantic Crop Management School Set

COLLEGE PARK, Md.— Agribusiness organizations and the Cooperative Extension Service at land-grant universities in the Mid-Atlantic region have joined forces for the first Mid-Atlantic Crop Management School.

Intended for persons who provide crop management recommendations to farmers, the short course is scheduled December 5-7 in the Calverton Holiday Inn near Beltsville, Md.

The three-day event will offer basic and specialized training in crop production, nutrient management, pest management, and soil and water conservation.

It is intended for agribusiness representatives, certified crop advisers, extension educators, farmers, regulatory personnel, integrated pest management (IPM) scouts and other persons involved in making crop-related management decisions.

Specialized training will be available in a wide array of topics, including pest identification, sprayer technology, global positioning, biotechnology, and fertility decisionmaking.

The basic training will help prepare individuals for the regional IPM and nutrient management sections of the Mid-Atlantic Certified Crop Adviser (CCA) examination in 1996. Specialized training will provide Continuing Education Units (CEUs) for nutrient management consultants and persons who passed the 1995 CCA exam in February.

University faculty members and agribusiness representatives from Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware, West Virginia and Virginia will comprise the instructional staff for the upcoming crop management school.

A tuition charge of approximately $125 will cover morning and afternoon refreshment breaks, plus lunch, for all three days of the school. A group rate of $62 per night, single or double, has been arranged for overnight lodging.

Enrollment for the school will be limited to 200 persons, and registrations will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis, according to Ronald L. Ritter, weed control specialist for the cooperative extension service, University of Maryland at College Park. Ritter is handling arrangements, along with Joanne M. Whalen, extension pest management specialist for the University of Delaware. Registration materials will be available shortly.

Persons wishing to make sure they receive a registration packet may call Ritter at (301) 405-1329 or Ms. Whalen at (302) 831-2526.

ALL

THE DEPENDABILITY
THE ECONOMY

YOU'LL EVER WANT IN A ROTARY CUTTER.

BUSH HOG® SQUEALER LINE.

PERFORMANCE.
Squealers are ideal for pasture clipping, and grass cutting on small and medium acreage. You get a clean cut on uneven terrain, as flexible linkage allows the cutter to "float" over ground contours.

QUALITY AND DEPENDABILITY
With Squealers, you get many of the rugged construction features of our heavier-duty models... and this means durability. All-welded steel deck construction is braced and strengthened at stress points. The tapered rear deck design allows fast discharge and finer shredding... which means less tractor horsepower is required.

ECONOMY.
If you haven't already compared the Squealers to competitive models, you're in for a pleasant surprise. We invite comparison. If you want a top line rotary cutter at a bottom line price, if you want both affordability and durability – take a good look at a Bush Hog Squealer. It may be all you'll ever want in a rotary cutter.

Sale Ends May 10th!

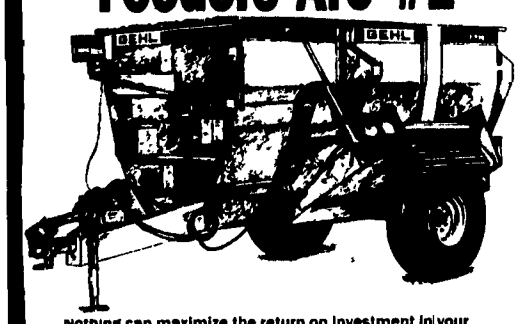
Gehl TMR Mixer Feeders Are #1



Nothing can maximize the return on investment in your dairy or beef feeding operation like a Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system. And nothing makes TMR work better than a Gehl mixer feeder. Here's why:

- Better Mixing Action — Unique four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients
- Energy Efficient — Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built To Last — Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Six Sizes — From 150 to 500 cubic feet mixing capacities.
- Three Styles — Trailer type, stationary and truck-mounted units to fit your operation.

The 7500 plows also feature exclusive Earth Metal® moldboards— the kind that withstand up to 50% more deflection than conventional moldboards without breaking.

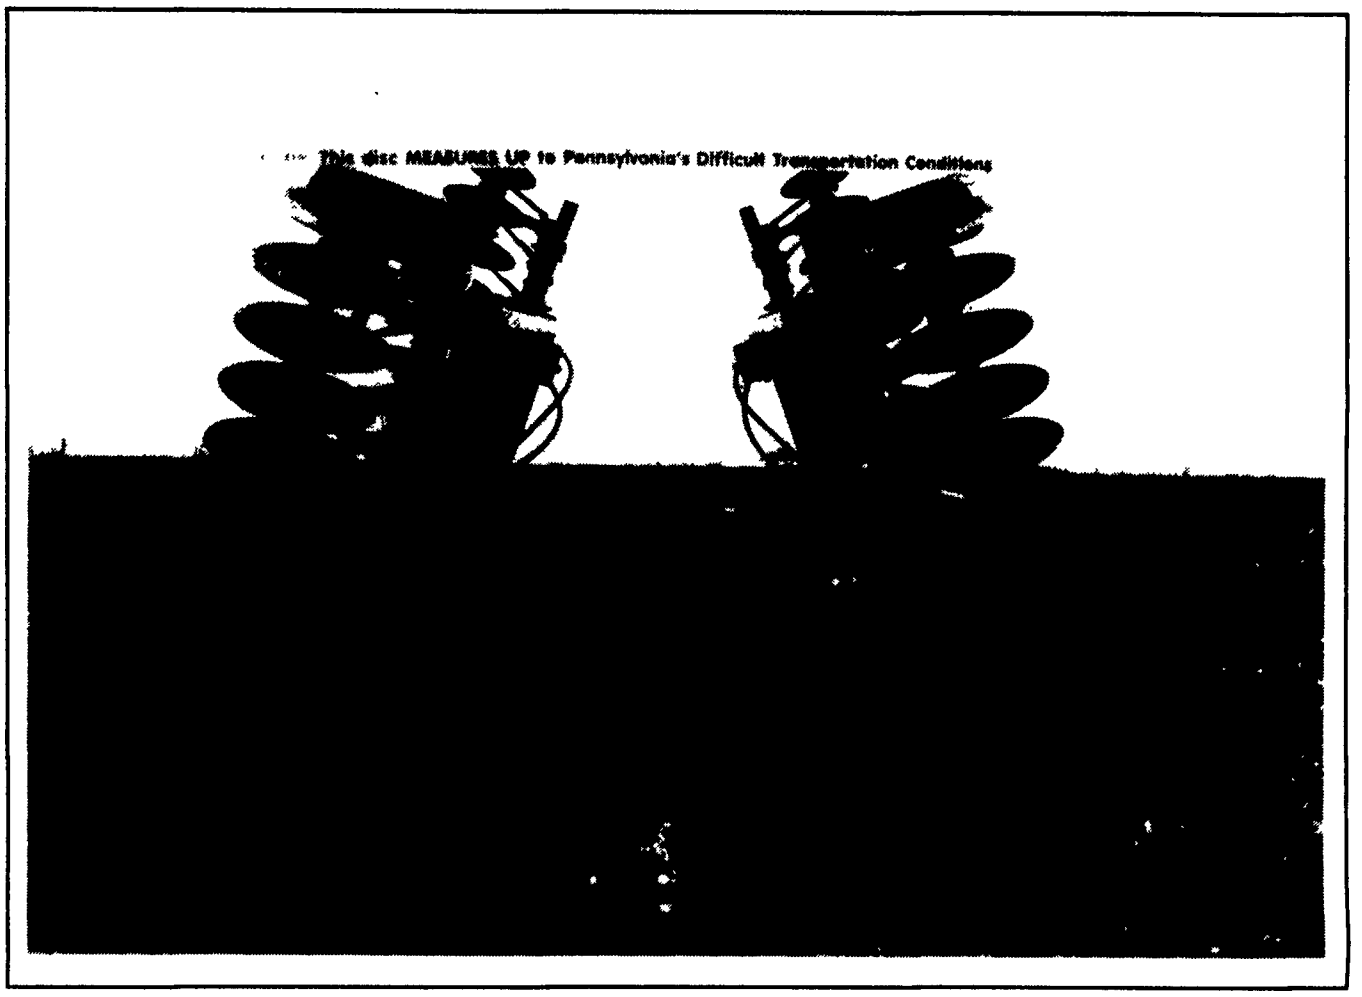
KRAUSE CONSERVATION TILLAGE

ROCKFLEX DISC HARROWS

Conserve Your Soil...



KRAUSE PLOW CORPORATION has always been THE LEADER in building CONSERVATION TILLAGE systems designed to prepare a level seedbed in all types of soils and field conditions...

- From Krause you've always expected a superior job of cutting & finishing to produce top crop yields.
- Now that the Government has dictated you increase your crop residue, KRAUSE has responded with conservation blades that will increase your crop residue over older discs.
- And you still get engineered dependability just like you always have with KRAUSE.

CLAAS® Rollant round balers give you what you want

—one quality round bale after another.

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

CLAAS bales mean nutrient-filled edible hay, low spoilage, and high crude protein retention.

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

Call now to see how you can improve the round figures on your bottom line.

"FARMERS ARE BUYING ZETOR-POWER NOT JUST ZETOR'S LOW PRICES,"

says Ronald Kistler of Kermit K. Kistler, Inc.

Zetor's low tractor prices used to be the quickest way to get sales. But Zetor-Power has taken over as the most important selling point.

Zetor's up-to-date engineering and heavy cast iron chassis provide a balanced power-to-weight ratio. That means a Zetor tractor does more with less horsepower

The perfect examples of Zetor-Power are Zetor models 6320 (2WD) and 6340 (4WD) which deliver 70 HP, 10 speeds forward, and two reverse. And, like all Zetor tractors, they carry a brand new Two Year Warranty.

"Customer satisfaction is more important to to me than a quick sale. So call me at the number listed below and get real Zetor-Power. It's guaranteed!"

MONTHLY MAINTENANCE TIP

Sidehill Work

When working back and forth on the side of a hill, the rear tractor tires will alternately be on the down side. It is recommended that the inflation pressure in both rear tires be increased by 4 PSI under such conditions. When one tire is continuously operated in the down slope position, it is only necessary to increase the inflation pressure in that tire.

Farmers Must Use Small Tractors, Mowers Safely

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — As spring temperatures encourage grass to grow, farmers and homeowners will be mowing lawns with small lawn and garden tractors or riding mowers.

Spending a few moments to check safety aspects can keep you and your family from harm, according to an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Safe lawn and garden tractor operation begins before you start the equipment. "Reports of garden tractors overturning on their operators have been rising," said Sam Steel, senior research technologist in agricultural and biological engineering. "Many overturns and other types of garden tractor incidents stem from poor preparation.

"Check the turf area beforehand to remove any debris that may be thrown from under the mower's deck," Steel said. "Sticks, rocks or children's toys can be expelled at speeds approaching 200 miles per hour. Checking for hidden obstacles in the grass may prevent a serious injury to bystanders."

An extra rider on the operator's lap or carried on a tractor fender or hood is an accident waiting to happen. "Small lawn and garden tractors have a seat for one person only," said Steel. "The operator must use this seat, so carrying extra riders is dangerous. A passenger might distract the operator or cause the tractor to tip and overturn."

A careful tractor inspection before mowing is just as important for garden tractors as it is for full-size farm tractors. "For instance, low tire air pressure can affect the steering and handling of the machine," Steel said.

"Make sure the wheels and mower deck are at the right height. An improperly adjusted mower deck will probably gouge your turf and make mowing unsafe. Loose bolts, missing pins and dull and nicked blades also are hazards."

Never use replacement parts that are not the correct size. "Using incorrect mower blades is a common mistake and often results in damage to the underside of the deck and a blade that spins too close to the exit chute," said Steel. "Fingertip amputations are fairly common when people install a blade that is too long."

Never attempt to refuel a garden tractor when it is hot. "Gasoline spilled over a hot engine or muffler can result in a fire and serious burns," Steel said. "Always allow at least five minutes for the engine to cool before filling the tank, and never refuel inside a closed building where fuel vapors can accumulate."

Steel offers these mowing guidelines for farmers and other small tractor operators:

•Fill fuel tanks outdoors.

•Disconnect spark plug wires before cleaning the mower deck.

•Use a dust mask when mowing during dry conditions.

•Wear protective shoes and clothing, including ear and eye protection.

•Never mow wet grass that will clog the mower's exit chute.

•Keep bystanders, including children and pets, at a safe distance.

•Always start the tractor on level ground.

•When finished, perform routine mower maintenance immediately after the engine cools.

More information about farm and home safety is available from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Meeting To Examine Food Safety Regs

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Understanding and Reacting to the New Food Safety Regulations" will be the subject of a meeting to be held on Wednesday, April 26, at the Penn State University Berks Campus from 2 p.m.-4 p.m.

The meeting will review the new USDA Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points (HACCP) Program regulations.

Speakers include William Smith, acting assistant deputy administrator with the inspectional management program, USDA/FSIS; Dr. William Henning, Penn State meat specialist; and Tim Holden, state representative.

The new food safety regulations will have major impacts on the entire food industry, and processors will have to make changes to comply. For more information, contact Clyde Myers at the Berks extension office, (610) 378-1327.

80 LBS. PER COW

It Can Be Done!!

Nothing fancy, just good forages, good genetics, comfortable well-managed cows, a healthy environment, and a sound feeding program utilizing Purina's Test Cow complete feed with Purina Maxi-Tech 32 Whole Cottonseed as a topdress. This is how it's being done at a 50-cow dairy in Bedford County (dairyman wished to remain anonymous)

The cows are fed haylage, corn silage, and dry hay separate from grain in a tie-stall barn and milked twice a day.

4/95 test day averages were

80.1 Lbs. milk

at 173 days in milk with a RHA of 22,507

Purina Mills and Bedford farm Bureau thank this Bedford County dairyman for his business as well as giving us the opportunity to help achieve their high production goals.
